

Takes Four States

McGovern Big Winner

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

Sen. George McGovern captured the crucial California primary today to cap a four-primary sweep that takes him a long way toward winning the Democratic presidential nomination.

Though the race turned out to be closer than expected, the South Dakota senator won a clear victory over Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey in their battle for California's 271 delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

Along with victories in New Jersey, New Mexico and his native South Dakota, the triumph vaulted McGovern's delegate total past the 900 mark in his drive to reach the 1,509 needed to capture his party's presidential nomination.

Humphrey, however, appeared to have done well enough in California to stay in the race and encourage those Democratic party leaders and labor chieftains who have been cool to the McGovern candidacy.

Even before it became clear that Humphrey's margin in populous Los Angeles County would be insufficient to overcome the hefty McGovern majorities in the northern part of the state and in San Diego, McGovern was claiming victory and saying it means he'll win the Democratic nomination.

With over half of the vote counted, McGovern had 47 per cent, Humphrey had 38 per cent.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, a write-in entry, ran third with 5 per cent, but his true total was unlikely to be known for several days. Six other candidates split the remaining ballots.

Before the California outcome was settled, McGovern had won the day's three other primaries.

He captured a solid majority of the 109 New Jersey delegates, swept the 17 of his native South Dakota without opposition and edged Wallace in a tight New Mexico race in which he emerged with 10 delegates to the Alabama governor's eight.

California, however, was the big prize. Both McGovern and Humphrey had predicted the winner would capture the presidential nomination though Humphrey modified that in recent days as polls showed him far behind in the state.

The California vote count was delayed when a federal judge in San Francisco ordered polls kept open an extra three hours to handle delays caused by an unusually long local ballot. Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. then ordered the statewide tally held up until San Francisco polls closed.

A few votes were counted before Brown's order was received, mainly in the north where McGovern was running well, and then the tally stood still for more than two hours, until after 2 a.m. EDT.

As the tally started to mount, McGovern told reporters, "I realize there's nothing certain in politics, but I think these four victories probably set the stage for my victory in Miami Beach."

He said he planned to talk with Humphrey in the next few days, adding, "He and I know how to talk to each other on a man-to-man basis. We have a high regard for each other and I think something can be worked out."

Humphrey left for Houston, Tex., to meet today with Democratic governors who conferred with McGovern late Monday night.

President Nixon swept to a 91 victory over his conservative challenger, Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio, in the race for California's 96 delegates to the Republican National Convention.

In New Mexico, Nixon lost one of the 14 GOP delegates, to Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr. of California, who long ago dropped from the presidential race and appeared to be winning a primary in his own state for renomination to the House.

The four primaries Tuesday were the last of the long primary season save one, the New York primary two weeks from now in which McGovern is expected to pick up a hefty majority of the 278 delegates. In the three other primaries Tuesday, the biggest surprise was Wallace's strong showing in New Mexico. Gathering strength in rural areas, he battled McGovern to the wire and won half of the state's delegation under rules that called for proportional allocation of the 18 delegates between the two top finishers.

With 92 per cent of the votes counted, McGovern had 33 per cent to Wallace's 30 per cent. Humphrey, with 26 per cent, finished third and won no delegates despite the backing of Gov. Bruce King and Sens. Clinton P. Anderson and Joseph M. Montoya.

In New Jersey, where 102 of the 109 delegates were chosen in the state's 21 counties, the results were clouded by a slow count and close contests for many spots.

McGovern spokesmen claimed their candidate had won 63 races and was leading in 9 others. Humphrey's headquarters conceded McGovern had won 55 delegates, enough to control the delegation.

Humphrey appeared to have won 16 spots and was leading for 9 others.

In the race for the seven at-large delegates, votes were only being counted for the top man on each ticket. The tallies showed McGovern's man more than 10,000 votes ahead.

The only primary Tuesday that was never in doubt was in South Dakota. McGovern's slate was the only one entered for its 17 delegates. In Senate primaries, Sens. James O. Eastland, D-Miss.; Lee Metcalf, D-Mont.; and Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., all won renomination.

Newest Store in Town

Open Door Service Center, 109 West Main, is Sedalia's newest store and will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. The non-profit thrift shop is sponsored by the Poverty Action Corps, an inter-denominational group which was

Unique 'Retailer' Aids Sedalia Needy

By P. C. THOMAS

It's an unusual store. For one thing, the prices of articles are unbelievably low. Secondly, the two or three smiling saleswomen you'll see there aren't paid a dime for their time and services. Thirdly, the store has plenty of empty racks, indicating that it can use more merchandise.

Some men's shirts are marked at 25 cents. A pair of men's or women's shoes are priced anywhere between 25 cents and $2. Men's suits are available for $2 and upwards. Beautiful flower vases are marked 10 and 15 cents. There are thousands of other pieces of clothing and household articles neatly stacked in Sedalia's newest store.

The articles, all used and clean, are offered for sale to "the working poor" at Open Door Service Center, 109 West Main. The thrift shop, which is a non-profit enterprise sponsored by Sedalia's inter-denominational Poverty Action Corps (PAC), will open its door to the public at 9 a.m. Thursday. Each week it will be open for business from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

Opening of the store "has been a dream of the Poverty Action Corps," Mrs. D. R. Miller, 2110 East Ninth, store manager, told The Democrat-Capital.

The PAC, which is made up of members of seven Sedalia churches, was organized in October, 1970. Mrs. John Ellison, 2236 West Third, is the group's chairman.

The 1,887-square-foot service center, which once housed Walter's Clothing Store, is rented to PAC for $75 a month. The first month's rent has been donated by the Rev. Eugene Trice, pastor of Epworth United Methodist Church. Mrs. Miller said they hope to rent for subsequent months with proceeds from sales.

Both Mrs. Miller and Mrs. William Eschbacher, 1017 West Seventh, assistant store manager, said the moving spirit behind the opening of the store was the Rev. Marvin G. Albright, pastor of United Church of Christ. "This little project,"

Mrs. Eschbacher said, "is something Sedalia can be proud of."

The initial storing work at the service center was started in mid-May. Since then several PAC members have spent "hours and hours" sorting clothes, taking them home to wash and iron, pricing them, cleaning other articles and arranging the display windows. Mrs. Miller pointed out, "Rev. Trice washed the windows yesterday (Tuesday). ... Rev. Albright and Rev. William Lusk (pastor of Calvary Episcopal

Expecting Composite Of Rapist

A composite picture of a man who raped a 33-year-old Sedalia woman May 31 will be made available to The Democrat-Capital for publication "hopefully by Thursday," Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said Wednesday.

Fairfax said a private artist was scheduled to meet with the most recent rape victim Wednesday to formulate the composite picture. He declined to identify the artist or where he was from.

Fairfax said he decided to use a private artist instead of a composite kit from the state Highway Patrol because "the kit is fine on some people, but it doesn't provide for an accurate description of mustaches and sideburns."

Both the woman who was raped May 31 and the 30-year-old woman who was raped April 19 have described their assailant as having a mustache and long sideburns, Fairfax said.

Riot Gun Blast Ends Driving Spree

A Kansas City man was sentenced to 180 days in the Pettis County jail and fined $150 in police court Wednesday on charges stemming from a wild automobile chase Tuesday night in which several shots were fired, two Sedalia policemen were injured and two police cars were badly damaged.

George Brown, 28, a construction worker, pleaded guilty to six charges: resisting arrest, destruction of property, failure to yield to an emergency vehicle, failure to obey a police officer and two counts of careless and imprudent driving. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $25 on each charge.

Brown was convicted on a charge of first-degree armed robbery with a dangerous and deadly weapon here in November, 1970, after a holdup at Griff's Burger Bar. He was released from the state penitentiary in March after serving most of his three-year term.

Patrolman James Hurst, who assisted in the capture of Brown after the automobile chase, was treated and released at Bothwell Hospital late Tuesday night for a sprained left wrist and major abrasion of the right elbow. Brown also was treated and released from Bothwell Hospital for injuries he received in the chase.

According to police, Brown was making U-turns at Broadway and Limit about 10 p.m. when Patrolmen Hurst and Dan Lassiter were told to investigate the erratic driving behavior of Brown.

Brown sped west on Broadway after the officers had asked him to stop and was pursued by Lassiter and Hurst.

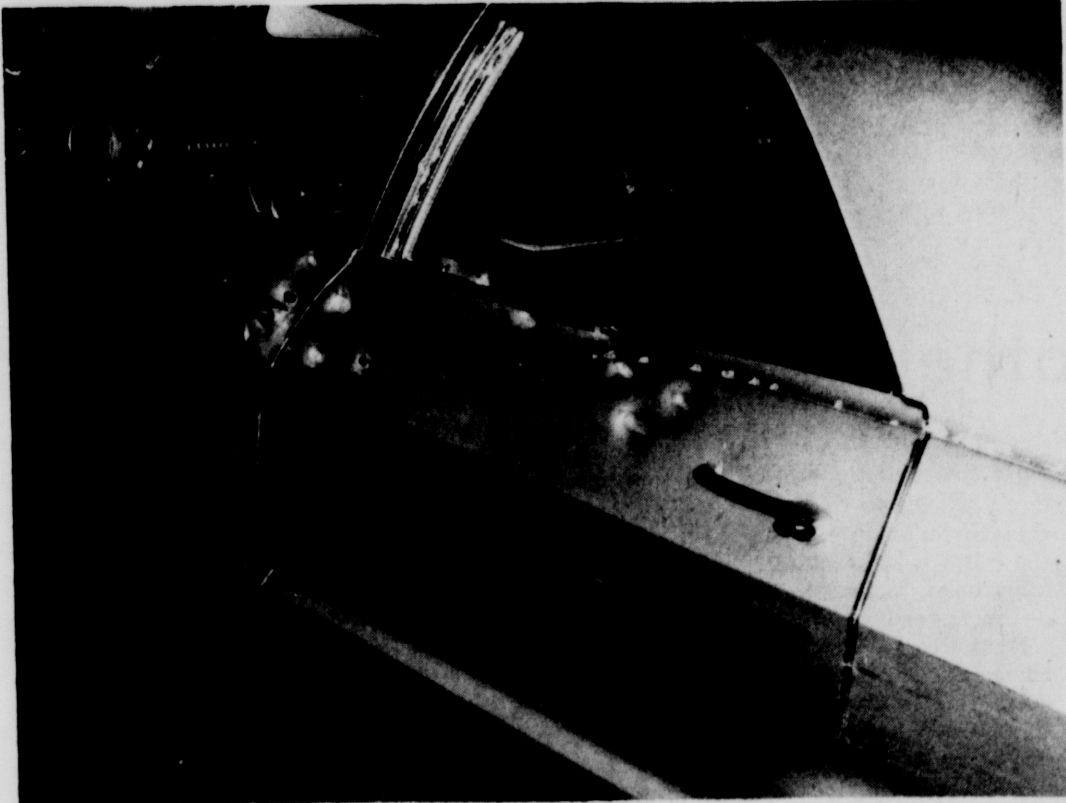

Hurst said the car driven by Brown was in the right lane of West Broadway when the patrol car, driven by Lassiter, approached it. Police Chief Bill Miller reported that the patrolmen ordered Brown, by using a loud speaker, to stop the car.

Brown then reportedly waved officers to come to the side of his car, which was traveling about five-miles-per hour. At this time two other police cars joined the pursuit: one driven by Ronald Yates and the other by Rainer Kocsis.

Hurst said Brown then sped away from the police cars and allegedly tried to run over a 12-year-old bicycle rider.

At this time, Hurst said, he fired two officers used a riot gun to stop the car. The top photo shows individual puncture marks from one riot gun blast, while the bottom photo shows the shattered rear window of the car. Brown received minor lacerations from flying glass.

Community Center Monies Earmarked

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has set aside $172,147 for a community center in Sedalia, it was learned Wednesday, but the actual allocation of funds is still pending approval of a final step in an application for the money.

Morris Byrum, chairman of the Neighborhood Facilities Committee appointed by Mayor Jerry Jones in 1970, said notification was received Tuesday from Rep. William J. Randall that the first part of the committee's application had been approved.

The total cost figure for the program is $258,000, with $172,147 of that scheduled to come from federal funds and the rest through "local efforts," Byrum said.

"The idea of the community center was first conceived approximately three years ago by the Sedalia Boys' Club board of directors. The center's designated primary usage is for services to low and moderate income families. These services, along with various building plans, will be completed in Phase Two, in the Sedalia Community Center's application," Byrum said.

Shortly after the idea was first announced, it was learned that the local group had obtained an option on the former St. Patrick's grade school and convent property here.

The notification from Randall indicated that the HUD money was set aside for an addition to and rehabilitation of two existing structures containing 25,975 square feet of space and containing 29 rooms.

Although the St. Patrick's property was not specifically mentioned by HUD, the description given matches it. According to one source, the Neighborhood Facilities Committee's original option to purchase the land expired some time ago. Tuesday's announcement apparently came as a surprise to local officials.

It was learned that a representative from St. Patrick's and the committee would meet Wednesday afternoon to discuss the HUD announcement. The Rev. Charles Pfeiffer, pastor of St. Patrick's, said any decision concerning renewal of the option would be made by the Most Rev. Michael F. McAuliffe, bishop of the Jefferson City diocese.

It was not known if the expiration of the option would have any direct effect on the money set aside by HUD.

Jones said he received a call from Randall's Washington office Tuesday notifying him of the HUD action. According to Jones, the Sedalia group now must obtain approval of "Phase Two" of its application. This, he said, requires giving the land owner assurance the property will be acquired through negotiations and that the property would not be occupied until paid for. It also means the local group would have to give the property owner 90 days to move out of the building.

The latter point is not considered a problem since the building stands vacant. However, loss of the option, it was learned,

Water Loss Is Problem At Tipton

(Democrat-Capital Service)

TIPTON — With the temperature soaring into the 90's, the month of June is no time for a city of 1,900 inhabitants to be almost out of water.

Tipton currently faces such a situation due to the failure of the city's last water pump at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The city, which had two water pumps, has been limited to one for several days since the first pump went out of operation. Citizens were asked to conserve water until the pump could be repaired.

When the pump ceased to function, City Marshal Gordon Williams and Dick Conn, a funeral director, informed residents here that the situation demanded water be used only for cooking purposes. By 8:30 p.m. their job was nearly complete. They used emergency vehicles to gain the attention of local residents.

The cooperation and aid given the city by area residents and other cities was commended by city officials here. The Tipton Country Club was one of the first to come to the rescue. Recently the city linked a water line to the club, and the club responded with water services. This enabled the city to retain 18 per cent of the original water supply.

Farmers from the surrounding area pitched in by bringing mobile water tanks to the town and lining them up along Main Street. Versailles also sent a water tank, and California sent a volunteer electrical crew to search for the reason behind the failure of the pump, it was reported.

It was not known how long the situation would remain in its current state or what caused the second pump to fail.

Holding Little Hope For African Miners

WANKIE, Rhodesia (AP) — Officials of the Wankie Colliery admitted today that they held little hope for the survival of more than 400 coal miners entombed deep below ground. It appeared likely that it would be the second worst mining disaster in African history.

"Miracles can happen, and some of the men could come out alive," the chairman of the company, Sir Keith Acutt, told a news conference in Salisbury. "But at this stage it does not look good."

The company's estimate of the number of missing men was revised downward from 466 to 428. There were three known dead, men whose bodies were recovered from the 300-foot level, and another was rescued with serious injuries.

A spokesman at Wankie, in northwest Rhodesia, announced earlier today that 466 men were believed still in the mine. But later in the day he said a total of 428 missing was arrived at by a check of workers absent Tuesday because they were ill or on vacation.

Five other men working on the surface were injured by the blast Tuesday.

The worst previous mining disaster in African history occurred at Coalbrook, South Africa, in 1960, when 437 men were killed.

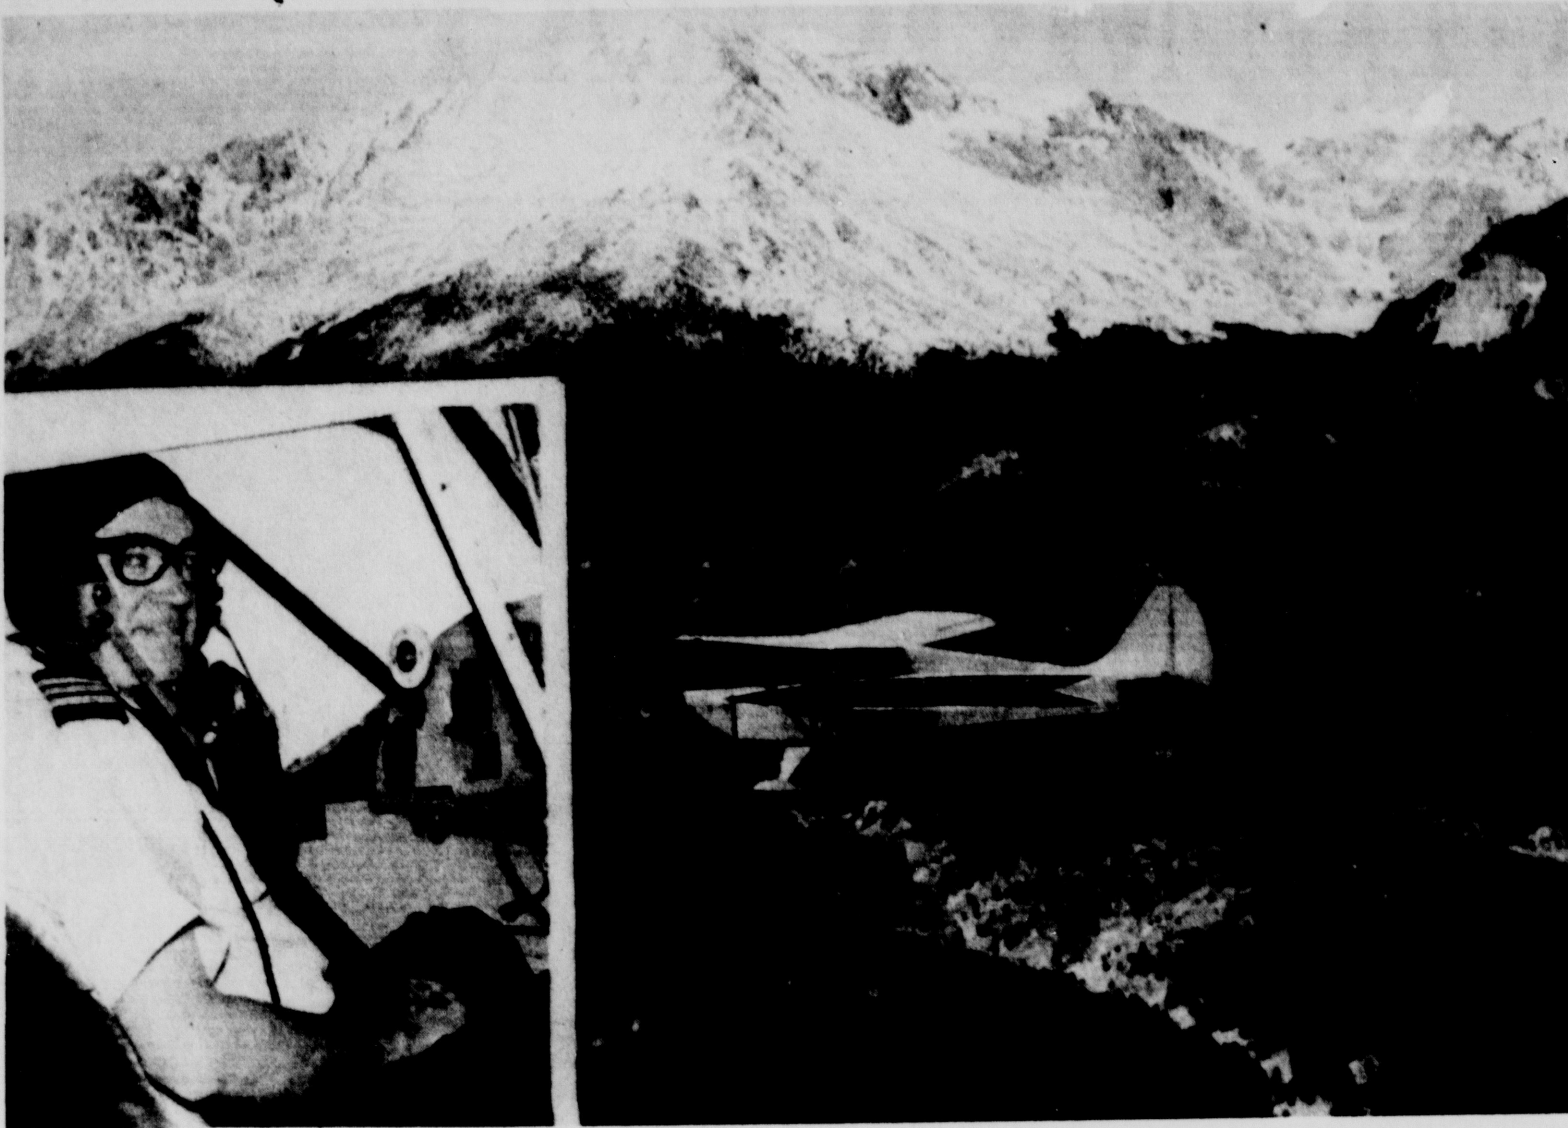

The rescue effort was hampered by explosions in a ventilation shaft today and a major rockfall at the main entrance to the shafts resulting from detonation of a cache of gelignite by the explosion Tuesday.

The explosions in the ventilation shaft forced rescue teams to give up efforts to repair it so that air could be pumped through to corridors in which men were believed trapped.

Government spokesman said the blasts increased carbon monoxide gas in the shaft, and workers wearing oxygen masks were operating auxiliary fans in efforts to draw off some of the gas.

The blast which trapped the men Tuesday was described officially as a "major underground explosion" and was unofficially reported to have been caused by methane gas combining with coal dust.

The explosion did extensive damage to the ventilation system, and large areas of the mine were without fresh air.

Ann Landers

Ex-boyfriend Still Visits Her Mother

Dear Ann Landers: My ex-boyfriend is involved with my mother. The reason he is my ex is because he didn't treat me right and I told him to get lost. My mother is in her late 30's and divorced. My ex-boyfriend is 19. When we were dating he used to tell Mom his troubles and she gave him advice. I thought when he broke up that would be the end of it but he still comes over to see Mom. I can't stand to be around them. I guess it was pretty dumb of me not to notice there was more between them than "motherly advice."

The guy has spent time in a mental hospital and I know he's a little off but I thought my mother had more sense than to fool around with a kid young enough to be her son. What should I do? It's beginning to get to me. — Wit's End

Dear Wit's: You can do nothing about your mother's company. But if you can't stand to be around them, there IS something you can do about that. When the ex shows up, make yourself scarce.

What is really needed here is a therapist with two couches. Your mother could use some help, too.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an average middle-class woman with a nice husband. He has a small business, we own a modest home and have no big worries. Our only child is six years old and I am pretty certain we will not have more children. The question I am writing about may sound peculiar but I need an answer. If something should happen to both my husband and me, is there a law that says an orphaned child must be raised by a relative? I have one living parent and my husband has one also. Neither would be a suitable guardian for our child. My sisters have not done a very good job with their children and my husband's sister has four kids she didn't want and it shows.

Unfortunately we did not name godparents when our

Funding Mentioned In Pollution Fight

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — The city of Kansas City, Kan., wants to improve water quality in the Kansas River and is interested in progress in water pollution control but funding is a major problem.

A statement by city commissioners Tuesday said a system that would meet federal and state requirements would cost $37 million.

The city's water pollution control program is financed with water pollution charges assessed against water users and this year's revenue for that purpose is estimated at $1.5 million.

The commissioners said it was hoped federal funding can be obtained to finance the program.

The statement was in reply to an announcement Monday by the Environmental Protection Agency that the Justice Department would be asked to take action against the city.

child was born. Is it too late to do so? Would godparents be the answer? Please give me some guidance. This thing has been preying on my mind for over a year. — Battle Creek

Dear B.C.: Godparents have no legal obligations. My advice is to make a choice, discuss it with whomever you've chosen and learn if they are willing to accept the responsibility. If so, make a will and state your wishes in writing. In the absence of a will, your child would probably be placed in the home of relatives.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 18 years of age and a recording artist with a trio. My career is a real groove so that's not the problem. What I am writing about is my boyfriend. Clyde and I have been going together for two years and I love him more than anybody in the whole world. The trouble is that Clyde is an Aries — very aggressive, jealous, and likes to boss me around. He has a hot temper and punches me whenever I say something he doesn't like. This interferes with my public appearances because stage make-up can cover the black and blue marks only so much.

I should tell you that I lie to him sometimes, not to hide anything but because I figure what he doesn't know can't hurt him, or me. When he finds out I haven't told him the truth he gets like wild. The problem is that I can't live WITH him and I

Playwright Tries Role in Theater

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "I have always wanted to be there in front of the audience," said Tennessee Williams. "It was pretty exciting, but I can't say I would do it again."

Williams made his first appearance as an actor Tuesday night after nearly three decades as one of America's premier playwrights. He played a role in one of his own plays, appearing unannounced to replace an actor making a movie.

"I have no complaints about the theater," Williams said afterward. "It has given me my life. It has deprived me of some things also. I gave up my life to write."

Williams played the role of Doc in "Small Craft Warnings," which opened to mixed reviews this spring at an off-Broadway theater.

In the play, Doc loses his medical license and hangs up his shingle in a California beach bar. Thoroughly fortified with alcohol, he goes off to deliver a baby, but returns to announce the death of both mother and baby. Doc decides to leave town and heads for the bar room door. Prolonged applause rolled down as Williams exited.

Williams, 61, a small, stocky man from Columbus, Miss., whose plays have won two Pulitzer Prizes, came back on stage after the final curtain to talk with the audience. As any fledgling actor, he was concerned about his performance.

"They told me I wasn't projecting. Could you hear me back there?" he asked. There was a mix of affirmative and negative responses from the back of the theater.

"I made several wrong moves," said Williams. "I was not shaken. I was really just trying to get through it."

Williams, loosening his tie and stroking his pointed beard, opened a bottle of red wine. He toasted the actresses in the cast and then Angela Davis, black militant acquitted Sunday of murder, kidnap and conspiracy charges in California.

Williams burst to prominence in 1944 when "The Glass Menagerie" opened in New York. He has since written more than a score of plays.

"I have lately been reading over some of my plays," said Williams. "They are not that bad. I think I should go on to further work."

Defense Ending Its Case

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — The defense expects to conclude its case today in the David Rothenberg murder trial without calling Rothenberg to the stand.

The 29-year-old Collinsville, Ill. attorney is charged in a three-count indictment with the murder of insurance investigator William S. Wells last Dec. 10.

Wells, 41, was abducted from a Glen Carbon, Ill., tavern parking lot and his body was found a few days later in the trunk of his car in East St. Louis.

Rothenberg handled some legal matters for Wells and testimony in the trial showed he had an affair with Wells' wife Babette.

Madison County Circuit Judge Michael Kinney Tuesday rejected defense motions for a directed verdict of innocent and to quash two counts of the indictment, those charging Rothenberg with soliciting others to help in the killing of Wells and with conspiracy to murder.

The defense argued that the state failed to link Rothenberg with the murder, failed to prove it occurred in Madison County and left open to doubt the question of a motive.

Final arguments were to begin this morning with the jury, consisting of eight men and four women, expected to start deliberations later in the day.

Pilots Begin Boycott Of Hijack Shelterers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid hints they might clear the skies of commercial airliners for a day, American pilots have begun boycotting countries that shelter airline hijackers.

The AFL-CIO Airline Pilots Association said Tuesday its 46,000 members will not fly to Cuba or Algeria or any other country which has refused to prosecute or extradite hijackers.

An ALPA spokesman said the boycott also will extend to airlines in other countries which serve Cuba or any of the Middle Eastern nations which have given airline hijackers refuge.

The spokesman added that a 24-hour refusal to fly on all U.S. airlines anywhere is under consideration as a means of showing how seriously the pilots are taking the hijacking problem.

No American-owned planes fly to Cuba so for U.S. pilots that portion of the boycott will have no impact.

In a letter, ALPA President John J. O'Donnell notified President Nixon Tuesday that he had directed pilots of 36 U.S. airlines holding contracts with the union to begin the boycott.

O'Donnell said he had asked leaders of other U.S. unions to see that servicing and ground maintenance of the aircraft of such nations also is withdrawn.

He said the 60-nation International Federation of Air Line Pilot Associations, meeting in London next Thursday and Friday, has been urged to join in.

O'Donnell also called on Nixon to bar from the United States the aircraft of nations that permit or condone air piracy.

O'Donnell was expected to solicit the support of maritime workers, in a luncheon talk before the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades department today.

"As our President, we look to you to work with other world leaders to insure that our boycott actions are effective," O'Donnell said in his letter to Nixon.

O'Donnell said Federal Aviation Administration figures show 450 airline passengers and crew members have been murdered by airline criminals around the world since air service was begun. Many others have suffered physical and psychological injuries of permanent nature, he said.

He said U.S. airlines have been victims of 147 hijacking assaults by 193 persons, of whom 107 are still fugitives. So far this year, he said, more than 1,100 U.S. passengers and crew members have been forced to go along in 18 hijackings.

had cleared the whole pool area," Mrs. Givens said. "Everyone ran to the hill north of the church building."

Credited with being the heroine of the incident was Debbie Domenico, a lifeguard.

"She stayed there until everyone was out, then had to be carried away," Mrs. Givens said.

She received treatment at the hospital for three hours before being released.

The baby who was held for observation was Mary C. Glidden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danny M. Glidden. She was in a stroller near the pool when the chlorine escaped.

Deputy fire chief Charles W. Willis said the gas apparently leaked through a connection at the bottle. But Givens, who had just hooked up the bottle of 150 pounds of liquid chlorine, said he thought the leak was in a chlorinator used to mix the chlorine.

TPA Picnic Date Announcement

The monthly meeting of Pettis County Post F of the Travelers Protection Association was held Monday evening in the Palm Room of the Bothwell Hotel.

It was announced that the group's annual picnic will be held at 6:30 p.m. July 20 at the Knights of Columbus Community Center south of Sedalia. Fish will be prepared by Post F members. Advance reservations are requested.

A number of new members were voted into the organization.

PSC Head Suggests Authority

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Marvin E. Jones, chairman, said today the state Public Service Commission should have the authority to settle territorial disputes between rural electric cooperatives and private utilities.

In a speech prepared for the Missouri Electric Cooperative Managers Association he said the public cannot be served properly if there is competition between cooperatives and private utilities in the same area.

"The object of the proposed legislation for regulation of cooperatives is to ensure adequate, safe service for the public at reasonable rates," he said.

"It is generally understood that the major reason this legislation failed to be approved in the last session of the General Assembly was due to the differences between private utilities and cooperatives over the issue of service area."

He noted competition between co-ops and private utilities has heightened as the metropolitan areas expand and increased growth takes place in rural areas.

"It is understandable, of course, that when two industries providing essentially the same service, but with different controls, are to be brought under the same standards, adjustments will have to be made," Jones said.

"The PSC has for almost 60 years been regulating utilities in the public interest, and is the most qualified tribunal and has the best machinery for making a decision as to who can best serve a certain area."

Denies Motion On Suppression

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Judge William H. Becker of the U.S. District Court has denied a motion by Arnold Stead, 24, to suppress grand jury testimony and statements by Stead on grounds they were obtained in violation of his constitutional rights.

Becker denied the motion Tuesday on grounds that no criminal action or grand jury proceeding against Stead is pending in federal court.

Stead, a former student at the University of Missouri-Kansas City, is scheduled to go on trial in Lawrence, Kan., next month on a state charge of conspiring to bomb the home of the county attorney. Stead is serving a five-year federal sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of illegal possession of a bomb. He was arrested June 30, 1970 in Kansas City with a pipe bomb.

Castro Slowing Journey's Pace

WARSAW (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro slowed the pace of a long tour of Africa and Eastern Europe today after reports that he was showing signs of heart trouble.

Polish government sources said shortly after the 44-year-old Cuban leader's arrival Tuesday from Hungary that he was in "a state prior to a heart infarct," indicating that the flow of blood to the heart muscle was threatened. Other Polish officials said later Castro was "very tired."

The bearded prime minister spoke briefly at a state banquet in his honor Tuesday night at the Council of Ministers building, the former Radziwill Palace. But a scheduled meeting with journalists was canceled.

Informants said cuts have been made in planned trips to the cities of Gdansk, Krakow and Katowice, scheduled to start today.

A white ambulance followed Castro's motorcade from the airport into the city Tuesday, and one was stationed in the forecourt of the Radziwill Palace during the banquet. Western sources reported.

An infarct of the heart is an area of damaged tissue resulting from a blockage of the flow of blood to the heart muscle. It results from an accumulation of fat-like substances or the formation of blood clots in the two pencil-sized coronary arteries.

Castro's plane from Budapest was an hour late, indicating the signs of heart trouble could have appeared in Hungary.

Dressed in his usual olive-green fatigues, the Cuban leader was greeted by Edward Gierek, chief of the Polish Communist party and Premier Piotr Jaroszewicz. There were no speeches at the airport.

Castro has been on the road for five weeks through eight African and East European countries. He is scheduled to visit Poland six days, then end his journey with a two-week stay in the Soviet Union.

Dispute Evolves On Dancing Group

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — The American Indian Movement planned to go to court today to keep the Koshare dancers from performing later this week in the Topeka Municipal Auditorium.

The AIM said Tuesday it would file a suit in Federal District Court against the Topeka City Commission and the Boy Scouts.

The Indians say the dances are degrading to their religion.

The groups involved tried to reach a compromise Tuesday but failed. The Indians wanted the Boy Scouts to move the dances from a public building but the Scouts attorney, Walter Stumbo, rejected the proposal.

The City Commission said it would incur liability if it broke the contract to lease the auditorium.

Declare Mistrial In Case

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP) — The jury failed to reach a verdict and Clay County Circuit Court Judge James Rooney declared a mistrial in the case of Glen Dean Hartley, former North Kansas City policeman, charged with burglary and stealing.

The jury deliberated 4½ hours before reporting it was deadlocked, 10-2, for acquittal.

Only last week another trial of a former North Kansas City policeman, Michael Jon Morrow, charged with burglary and stealing, also ended in a hung jury.

Hartley, 35, was charged with participating in the theft of up to 100 tires from the Dunlop Tire & Rubber Corp., in North Kansas City in November of 1970.

Key prosecution witnesses were Leo K. Rhoden, former North Kansas City policeman, Louis Verderber, owner of a boat shop, and a garage owner and operator, Albert Bossert.

Defense attorney Robert G. Duncan cited a number of inconsistencies in the testimony by referring to the North Kansas City police dispatcher's log. He also noted testimony that dust on a windowsill where the burglars supposedly entered the building was undisturbed and a ladder supposedly used in the burglary was found on the inside rather than the outside of the building.

DEATH NOTICES

Joseph W. Frisbie

Joseph W. Frisbie, 92, Route 3, died at the Bothwell Hospital at 10:15 a.m. Tuesday. He had been ill for several months and had been a patient at the hospital since May 25.

He was born at Quincy, Ill., July 26, 1879, the son of the late George and Mary Ann Spicer Frisbie.

On March 12, 1903, at Versailles, he married Miss Linnie V. Moon. They lived all their married life in Morgan and Pettis Counties. She preceded him in death May 8, 1968.

Mr. Frisbie was a member of the Dresden Baptist Church.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. Flossie Volrath, Dresden; Mrs. Ralph Dove, St. Charles; Mrs. Lissie Tell, Knob Noster; Mrs. Mary Arnold, Sweet Springs; Mrs. Lillie Adams, Centralia, Ill.; three sons, Lloyd Frisbie, Dresden; Henry Frisbie, Route 1; Ralph Frisbie, 1317 South Grand; 17 grandchildren, 35 great-grandchildren and four great-great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Ewing Funeral Home at 1 p.m. Thursday with the Rev. Claude Newman, pastor of the Dresden Baptist Church, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Raymond Knox, pastor of the Broadway Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd G. Parker will be accompanied by Mrs. Clyde Waters at the organ.

Pallbearers will be Freddie Reno, Tommy Reno, Charles Joe Frisbie, Jimmy Gosney, Charles Williams and Darrell Oswald.

Burial will be in New Bethel Cemetery. The body is at the funeral home.

William Roy Bybee

Funeral services for William Roy (Lark) Bybee, 77, formerly of 511 South Engineer, who died Tuesday in a nursing home at Liberty, will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at the Reser Funeral Chapel, Warsaw.

Burial will be at Bethel Cemetery, Edwards.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday at the funeral chapel.

has created some doubts about proper procedure now.

Phase One of the application included descriptions of the building, what it would be used for, the area it would serve, the racial make-up of the area, and other details, Jones said.

It was previously reported that after the St. Patrick's property was obtained, the committee hoped to construct a gymnasium north of the existing buildings.

Byrum said at that time the center could be used for remedial and non-curricular education; employment, job training and counseling services; health and vocational rehabilitation services; housing and home management services; volunteer community service programs; consumer information; legal aid and information on rights of the poor; and recreational activities.

As originally conceived, the center would have been the Sedalia Boys Club new home, but HUD informed local officials last August the center could not be used for that purpose, emphasizing that all rooms in the center must be multi-purpose spaces, and not dominated by any one organization.

Wednesday Byrum said the "committee is now in the process of contacting the various agencies to explain the Community Center's function. Inquiries concerning available space and activities should be directed to post office box 473," he said, or to any of the members of the board. "An open forum on the center and its activities will be announced within the next two weeks," he added.

Enemy Railroading Is Blasted By Jets

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force Jets wrecked a big North Vietnamese railroad marshalling yard and highway bridge less than 25 miles from the Chinese border, military spokesmen reported today.

The raid Tuesday was the closest to North Vietnam's northern frontier since the full-scale bombing campaign was resumed on April 6.

The bridge 10 miles southwest of Lang Son was knocked out with "smart" bombs guided to the target by laser light rays, the spokesmen said.

Another flight of Air Force Phantoms dropping laser bombs attacked the Bag Giang power plant 25 miles northeast of Hanoi for the second time in a week. The raid June 1 damaged the plant and its support buildings, spokesmen said, while the strikes Tuesday scored direct hits on the generator buildings and plant. But cloud cover prevented determination of the extent of damage, the spokesmen said.

The U.S. Command said U.S. pilots flew more than 270 strikes across North Vietnam Tuesday and destroyed or damaged five other bridges and 61 supply water craft.

Pilots from the carrier Saratoga reported destroying the east span of the Yen Lap railroad bridge 29 miles southeast of Hanoi and said they set fire to the Tieu Gao petroleum storage area 30 miles southeast of the North Vietnamese capital.

In South Vietnam, meanwhile, North Vietnamese forces made a series of attacks northwest of Saigon.

Troops of the North Vietnamese 7th Division attacked four South Vietnamese militia posts defending the district towns of Chu Chu, Trang Bang and Khien Hanh on the Saigon River corridor, a key infiltration route. The attacks Tuesday were at points 25 to 40 miles northwest of Saigon.

Field reports said 42 North Vietnamese troops and seven militiamen were killed, and 67 South Vietnamese were wounded.

Sixty miles north of Saigon, standoff fighting continued for the 62nd day at An Loc and along Highway 13 south of the provincial capital.

Field reports said 82 North Vietnamese and 12 South Vietnamese were killed and 91 government troops were wounded.

Communist forces kept up the pressure on the central coast, destroying a bridge on Highway 1 about 13 miles northwest of Qui Nhon and shelling An Nhon, a district town midway between Qui Nhon and Phu My. Two South Vietnamese were reported killed and 20 wounded at An Nhon.

But at Pleiku, in the central highlands, a South Vietnamese spokesman reported that "the fighting in Kontum is finished," and the provincial capital had a quiet night.

The South Vietnamese claimed they had driven all the North Vietnamese out of Kontum after 12 days of street fighting and killed 411 North Vietnamese in the final battling Tuesday. U.S. officers estimated about 200 killed at the most, but the figure in the records will be 411.

Forty U.S. B52s dropped 1,000 tons of bombs on the North Vietnamese pulling back from Kontum.

No Action Taken On Fairgrounds Expansion Request

The state Fiscal Affairs Committee took no action Tuesday on a request by the Department of Agriculture to spend $75,000 to buy 60 acres of land for a campground just west of the State Fairgrounds, but W. C. Askew, secretary of the Fair, said this did not automatically mean the money would be denied.

The agriculture department was allotted $221,000 for repairs and improvements to existing facilities and Askew had asked that $75,000 of that be diverted for the land acquisition.

Askew told The Democrat-Capital he expected to receive a letter from the committee after the group meets this week to make its final decision. He indicated favorable action is anticipated by agriculture department officials.

Askew also said the land "was very important to the fair since it is the only area left for expansion." He said State Fair Community College had options on all the land which might otherwise be considered.

According to Askew, the land, when improved as a campground, might produce as much as $10,000 a year in revenue. He said the state had an option until August to buy the land from Clinton Mueller and his sisters, who are heirs of the estate that owns the property. Askew said he did not know if Mueller might consider extending the option, should that be necessary.

Considers Bid On Sewer Work As 'Pretty Good'

City Engineer Robert Cunningham Wednesday said bids on the Southwest sewage lagoon project received at Monday night's council meeting were "pretty good ... a lot lower than we expected to get."

The apparent low bid received for construction of the three-mile interceptor sewer was $344,371.60 from the KaMo Construction Co., Kansas City. This figure is $100,629.40 lower than the project cost of $445,000 made by consulting engineers Burns and McDonnell.

Cunningham's observation was particularly apparent in the low bid received for construction of the lagoon. The bid, of $165,836.28 is $359,163.72 less than the engineer's estimated cost of $525,000.

Cunningham and his staff currently are checking the accuracy of all bids received to insure that no miscalculations were made by the bidders. No bids will be formally accepted until all have been examined, it was reported.

Centennial Park Pool Opening Date 'Definite'

Mayor Jerry Jones Wednesday said the Centennial Park Swimming Pool "definitely" will open Saturday, approximately 40 days after its projected completion date.

"We're in good shape for this weekend," Jones said, "if people would just drive by, they could tell that."

Junior Andrews, spokesman for the Carr Construction Co., Carthage, the pool's contractor, said, "If there is no other act of God, we'll have it by Saturday." Andrews refuted rumors that large cracks had developed in the structure, saying "it isn't cracked or anything. When we leave here, it'll hold water."

Workmen Wednesday were painting the sides of the pool and putting final touches on fencing and cement work. The pool's three diving boards will be installed some time Thursday or Friday, it was reported.

Ionia Man Injured In One-Car Crash

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WINDSOR — Hospital officials here reported an Ionia man in fair condition Tuesday evening followed a one-car accident just east of Highway 127 on Highway 52 at 1:20 p.m. Tuesday.

Suffering from possible head and internal injuries is Roy Allen Neil, 45.

Neil was traveling west and in the act of passing another vehicle when he lost control of his 1972 Ford, according to the Highway Patrol. The car ran off the south side of the road, swerved back across the road and jumped the ditch, breaking off a power pole, a spokesman for the patrol explained.

Environment Proposition Is Defeated

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The bitterly debated Environmental Initiative which would have put strict antipollution controls into effect in California was beaten at the polls after a fierce opposition campaign led by business and labor.

An opponent of the measure, ballot Proposition 9, said today however, that the issue could spur business groups into better environmental protections. Backers of the measure said they didn't really lose and vowed to try again.

Incomplete returns in Tuesday's primary showed the measure losing by a ratio of 21.

The initiative would have banned DDT and related long-lasting pesticides from California, removed lead from gasoline by July 1, 1976, outlawed offshore oil and gas drilling and put a five-year moratorium on construction of nuclear power plants in the nation's most populous state.

The controversial measure rated high in the opinion polls earlier this year as sponsors called it the environment's best chance. But it steadily lost ground as oil companies, utilities and building firms waged a $1.4-million campaign against it, warning of epidemics, lost jobs, power shortages and a damaged state economy.

None of the other nine state ballot measures generated as much controversy as Proposition 9 and all were approved in early ballot counting. They included granting $600 million in bonds, changing property tax law, allowing an open primary and revising state trial and election law.

Both Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Eschbacher expressed the hope that Sedalians will donate clothing and household articles to the store. The store also needs volunteers — men, women and youths — who can serve as sales personnel, they pointed out. Those who wish to donate articles or help at the store are asked to call Mrs. Eschbacher at 826-7478.

Mrs. Miller pointed out that so far PAC has "almost completely furnished 11 or 12 homes in Sedalia."

Mrs. Eschbacher said they want to run the service center "as a clean store where people can come in and shop with dignity. There's more dignity in buying something than receiving it as a gift," she said.

Mrs. Jewell Ellis, Route 2, is the other assistant manager of the store.

The store's board of directors consists of Mr. and Mrs. Albright, Mr. Trice, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Eschbacher, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Rose Siegel, Mrs. Richard Schreck and Mrs. Frank Butler.

Representative Named By Court

Kalo Monsees, Smithton, has been named the Eastern District Democratic representative to the Pettis County Highway Commission, Eastern County Court Judge E. L. (Red) Birdsong announced Wednesday.

Monsees replaces Virgil Ellis, 2412 Golf. Birdsong said the change was necessitated by the county's recent adoption of the "one man-one vote" concept ordered by the Supreme Court. The redistricting move places Ellis' residence in the Western district.

warning shots at Brown, who was traveling east on Broadway. Off-duty policeman Gary Pitts, who saw the chase, set up his private car to block the Brown car, at Kentucky and Broadway but Brown swerved to avoid him.

Pitts then shot out the two rear tires of Brown's car with a pistol, Miller said, indicating Pitts was close enough to Brown to have shot him.

At this time Brown made two U-turns and rammed the police car driven by Yates, in which Patrolman Larry Farrens was a passenger, it was reported.

After several more U-turns, Hurst said, Brown rammed Yates' car two more times. He also forced the car driven by Kocsis off the road after ramming it, police reported.

Hurst then said police fired two shots from a riot gun into the back window of Brown's 1966 Buick, which was then traveling west on Broadway. Miller said Brown swerved to hit several other cars, forcing one of them off the road and into a yard.

Brown's car, which had two or three flat tires, according to Miller, ran over an island at a Skelly service station at 1725 West Broadway, became airborne and broke an axle when it landed.

Brown, apparently realizing his car would not move, tried to escape the pursuing police cars on foot near Broadway and Limit.

He was chased by Patrolmen Pitts, Glenn Baker and Hurst. Hurst said he partially subdued Brown after he hit him on the head with his pistol. Hurst tripped and fell while grabbing Brown's shirt, resulting in Hurst's injuries. Brown was cut by flying glass when one shot from the riot gun shattered the rear window on the car.

Hurst said Kocsis and Lassiter finally subdued Brown.

Police also reported that Brown, during the chase, had attempted to ram a car driven by Steven D. Davis, no address given. When Davis got out of his car, Brown allegedly tried to hit him again, Miller said.

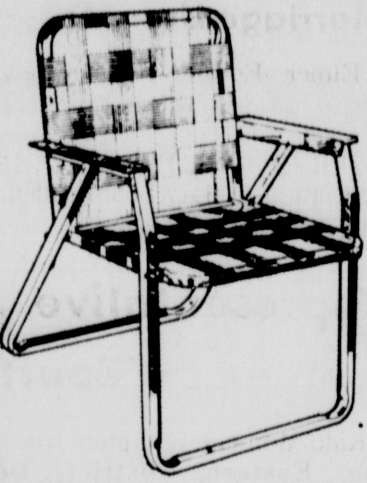

Police reported that Brown had requested their help Saturday night because, he told officers, someone "was trying to kill him." Brown was taken to a relative's house here and later driven to Kansas City, police said.

Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney Adam Fischer said Wednesday he tentatively expected no state charges to be filed against Brown. He said because Brown was convicted in police court it was unlikely he could press charges stemming from the same incident.

Both police cars rammed by Brown were listed as inoperable.

The Listeners

These are the people who listen when it seems that no one else will. Volunteer listeners at the Bloomfield Hills headquarters of Hotline, an emergency telephone service covering the northern metropolitan Detroit area, sit in their cubicles ready to talk to anyone calling in with a problem. There are other "panic lines" in the area, aimed at the under-25 set — and hundreds more under various names across the country. (AP)

Hotline Offers Different Treatment For Youth

By STEFAN DONEV
Associated Press Writer

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Jean, 22, is on one phone serving as an emotional anchor for a spaced-out teenager high on "all the drugs I could find in my mother's bedroom."

Betty, a grandmother, is on another line talking with a boy who wants her to perform what some call an "unnatural act."

Earlier, Bill, 31, talked for an hour with an abortion-seeking 16-year-old.

Welcome to Hotline.

When it seems no one will listen, or when a person is afraid to talk to anyone who knows him, he can—in the northern metropolitan Detroit area—call Hotline. There are other "emergency telephone services" in the area aimed at the under-25 set, and hundreds more, under various names, across the country.

These panic lines are an outgrowth of the suicide prevention telephone services, according to Charles Slem, Hotline's administrator and the only person directly connected with its night-to-night operation who will allow his real name to be used.

Slem, 27, who worked on one of the first panic lines in California is working on his doctorate in clinical psychology. He and two part-time secretaries are the only paid workers.

"We're here when you need someone to talk to," said Slem. "We can't always solve problems, but hopefully we can help a person think them out and get a little better understanding of himself and the problem. And, we have a backup team of lawyers, psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers, doctors and clergymen."

"All we actually do is talk to people."

"There are days," said one of Hotline's 40 volunteer "listeners," when "I feel like an emotional toilet."

"But we really enjoy it," added Alice, a mother of three teen-agers. "There's a feeling of accomplishment from helping someone."

The listeners usually work two hours a week. Hotline runs from 6 p.m. through midnight daily from an unmarked office in a modern, suburban office building.

It operates through donations and community-group funding and answers more than 100 calls a week.

The listeners range from Jean, a student and at 22 the youngest, to Betty, a grandmother, the oldest—but the owner of a young-sounding voice.

Hotline takes no stands on anything.

"A listener must be non-judgmental," said Slem. "We're not gods. We can't tell a person what to do. We listen, care, and talk. Hopefully we'll get him thinking. That's it."

A listener also has to be strong. "You won't find any losers here," he said. "If they weren't strong they couldn't stand the strain."

Slem won't say what the wash-out rate is among volunteers.

It's too discouraging.

Volunteers go through four stages, including a telephone interview with a psychiatrist and a "role-playing situation."

Bill recounted his "final" exam: "The girl said she wanted an abortion. The first thing I could think to ask was, 'Are you sure you're pregnant?' She wasn't. I told her where she could get a pregnancy test without her parents finding out, and then we talked about abortion and alternatives."

But all calls aren't emergencies.

"I remember one night," said Bill, "when the biggest call was from an 11-year-old girl who wanted to know how to get an 11-year-old boy more interested in her than in sports."

Most of the listeners are women.

"I think it's harder for a man," said Alice. "They lack patience. They have a tendency to yell. 'Look you dumb kid, cut the crap and wake up!'"

"It doesn't help the operation much, but I've heard some male listeners do it and really wake the kid up. I suppose it's a matter of having the right touch."

Bill, whose wife is also a listener, said the listening technique has become a regular part of their lives.

"But," he added, "periodically I have to yell at my wife to quit hotlining me!"

One frustration felt by many of the listeners is "How did it all turn out?"

"We find out occasionally," said Alice. "But there are so many times when we never do."

"The strangest thing of all," said Betty, "is that the problems kids have today haven't really changed. They still get confused, uptight, fight with their parents and wonder what life's all about."

"Their way of expressing it is different now, but they're the same problems I had when I was a kid... and some of the same problems I have now."

U.S. Singer Russian Hit

NEW YORK (AP) — So what's a nice, American boy like you doing becoming a singing idol in Russia, starring in spaghetti westerns, and getting arrested in Chile for symbolically washing the American flag to show his support for Marxist President Allende?

"Look, I accept no political labels," says pop singer Dean Reed. "I'm a puppet of nobody. I'm my own man. I just stand on certain moral principles."

"I'll work with anybody who is working toward the progress of mankind at any particular moment. I love America. That's why I sometimes criticize it. The slogan, love me or leave me, is a misconception. If you love her, you stay with her, and try to correct whatever's wrong with her."

In the U.S.S.R., Reed has sung before a record 160,000 people in Lenin Sports Palace, and has been mobbed by screaming fans. His records have sold more than four million.

"That I'm popular in Russia is not due to political reasons. I'm popular because I can communicate emotions. Russians are emotional and are wonderful audiences. When I sang 'My Yiddish Mama,' the entire crowd cried. Compared to Russian artists who are stiff in stage manner, I'm open. I don't let the stage separate me and the audience."

The 33-year-old former University of Colorado meteorology major might have been working in the weather bureau today if it had not been for an impoverished band leader he met in 1952 on his way to Los Angeles to do some sightseeing. "If you pay my motel bills," the musician suggested to Reed, "I'll introduce you to a song publisher."

As a result, Reed, who had been working his way through college as a dude-ranch cowboy, entertaining people with his self-taught country music, was signed to a 7-year contract with a recording company. In 1961, he was sent on a personal appearance tour to Latin America, where one of his records had become a hit.

During the next four years there, Reed sang protest songs he had written in hospitals and schools, published a collection of his poems and essays, and gave the proceeds to a Chilean peace movement. "All my protest songs are love songs. If you love mankind, you must protest injustice."

"I was in Helsinki in 1965 for the World Congress of Peace representing the Argentine," he says. "Russia invited us all to Moscow. I sang on television. It was so well received that they invited me to do a concert tour in 1966 and again in 1971. I lost my voice and finished the last half of the 1971 tour this year."

Reed, blond, blue-eyed and 6 feet 1, got into Italian movies because a producer happened to like his records. One of his films, "Adios! Zapata!" in which he stars with Yul Brynner, has been released here. Reed expects to start shooting his 12th movie soon in Italy. Also on his agenda as a film for East Germany. "This is the first time they have invited an actor from a capitalist country," he says.

Victim of Massacre

Innovative Education Past Community Cost

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Innovation in urban education, for at least one public school, is a luxury this city has decided it may not be able to afford.

West Philadelphia University City High School stands as a monument to compromised hopes for a comprehensive new system of upgraded inner city education.

The gleaming $14-million citadel of experimental learning techniques, built in a predominantly black section of Philadelphia, is limping away from the new programs it was designed to provide.

Unregimented learning units geared to let students move at their own speeds have reverted to conventional classroom regimen for most students. Classrooms designed without walls for an individualized learning approach have been partitioned into conventional classrooms.

The 60-room school, Philadelphia's first new high school in nine years, opened in December and was immediately used to place pupils crowded out of other city schools. By February, 1,300 pupils were assigned to University City High.

most of them unprepared for the new techniques being practiced by a core of 300 pupils and 12 teachers. When the new pupils were given the choice of continuing with the innovations or going back to traditional procedures, 75 per cent opted for tradition.

Some school officials and pupils are bitter over what has happened to the school's promising program. They blame the Philadelphia school administrators who have taken over since last fall's election of Mayor Frank Rizzo, a foe of what he calls "frills" in education.

School administrators say the programs were curbed because federal funding programs were stopped.

Twenty-five per cent of University City High's pupils remain in a partial program of individualized learning, molded from the federal ES-70—Educational Systems for the 70s—program.

Walter Palmer, a 10th grader, is angry about the city school administration "dumping students from other overcrowded schools here. They (the new students) were not oriented for the new program by the school administration."

After untrained pupils and teachers poured into the school, English and social studies departments decided to try to continue with the individualized approach, at least for some pupils. Math and science departments refused to go along.

The result is that pupils, even those trained for two years in the innovative procedures, follow one approach in math and science and a different one in English and social studies, the mixture presents impossible work loads, many pupils feel.

Audrey Brodia, coordinator of the experimental program at University City High, feels the difficulties in implementing the new programs are due to political, not financial, problems.

"The program here can be continued without ES-70," Mrs. Brodia says. "We don't have to have more money. No, if we had students and teachers only involved in the experimental program, then we could carry it on."

Killer Satellite Studied

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Defense Department has decided to study the feasibility of a killer satellite system capable of intercepting, inspecting and destroying hostile space vehicles. The Soviet Union already has demonstrated this capability.

The Air Force space and missile systems organization in Los Angeles asked industry on May 26 to submit proposals on the system. At least three companies are expected to be selected to conduct competitive studies.

If defense officials decide on the basis of the studies to develop a satellite destroyer, it is believed subsystem testing could start next year, aiming for a test launch in 1975 or 1976.

If interceptor satellites are built, they would be able to fly alongside an alien spacecraft, determine its assignment and, if necessary, disable or destroy it.

Destruction could be effected by some sort of a "death ray," perhaps a laser beam; by signals that would disrupt the payload's electronics, or by blowing up the American satellite, destroying both payloads.

Satellite explosion is the technique used by the Russians. Since 1968, the Soviets have successfully demonstrated their spacecraft killer system at least seven times, according to U.S. sources.

These sources say the successful tests involved 12 separate launches of Cosmos satellites. Five were target satellites and seven were pursuit payloads that flew near their quarry. After an inspection, five of the interceptors blew apart on radio signal from the ground.

When President Nixon and Soviet Communist party leader

Leonid Brezhnev signed the nuclear arms limitation treaty last month, they said on-site inspection was not necessary, that spy satellites could do the job.

The Soviet Union has an operational space weapon the United States does not possess: the fractional orbital bombardment system (FOBS). In several tests in recent years the Soviets have demonstrated that a FOBS rocket is capable of hurling a nuclear bomb into a low earth orbit and that it can be called in on an earth target in less than one global pass.

But if it were used, the action would be a violation of a U.N. treaty prohibiting the placing of nuclear weapons in space.

In 1960, the Defense Department began developing a satellite interceptor under Project Saint.

Taiwan Boasts Booming Economy Which Might Provide the Ultimate Irony

Urban Invasion

Taiwan's population is moving out of the countryside into the booming cities — and rapid urbanization in its turn is spreading out into the countryside. Here in Taipei apartment buildings and slums line the edges of ricefields in an abrupt urban-rural confrontation.

A Land Of Contrasts

Fresh-faced young girls at a secretarial school in Taipei practice bayonet drill regularly. In class they study computers while back home their fathers are still using water buffalo in the rice paddies. The old and the new in the life of Taiwan's people continually ebb and flow, one occasionally submerging the other entirely, for a time.

By LEONARD PRATT
Associated Press Writer
TAIPEI (AP) — Sometimes in Taiwan it's hard to figure out what decade you're in.

Military police walk the streets. Top government leaders are in their 80's. High school students wear army uniforms. Hitler's "Mein Kampf" has just been translated into Chinese as a "work that should be discussed and studied by today's anti-Communists."

But on the bookstore shelves next to "Mein Kampf" are volumes of translated hippie love poems, bought by long-haired boys and short-skirted girls. Neon signs fight for space above traffic crammed streets, and shop windows are full of bright goods.

The old and the new in the life of Taiwan's people continually ebb and flow, one occasionally submerging the other entirely for a time.

Fresh-faced young girls at a secretarial school in Taipei regularly practice bayonet drill under the stern eye of an aging army major. In class they study computers while back home their fathers are still using water buffalo in the rice paddies.

The water buffalo may work fields only 100 yards from the shrieking afterburner of a supersonic fighter waiting to take off.

On Quemoy, the Nationalist-held island off the China coast that is the symbol of Chiang Kai-shek's promise to overthrow Mao Tse-tung, young soldiers twist to a rock band during a break in work on the island's fortifications.

Taiwan is more colorful than Mao's China and takes its ideology less seriously.

On national holidays government buildings are besieged by well scheduled demonstrations of devotion. But the demonstrations are ignored by thousands thronging the modern buses and trains en route to beach or mountain resorts, parks or zoos.

So far as people come into contact with the government, life is regimented. Uniformed school children march to rifle practice and bow their heads to paintings of Sun at-sen, founder of the Chinese Republic. The millions associated with the military rise to loudspeakers blaring martial music and the latest anti-Communist bulletins.

The regimented life has more than just a surface strictness.

Secret police nets are widespread. A local saying has it that "if eight Taiwanese are together, one of them is a cop." For those with "questionable thoughts," police pressure can result in anything from trouble at work to arrest and military trial.

"The problem is that the police are answerable to nobody," one man said.

But though the police are tight on subversion, it is Taiwan's booming economy—growing at 10 per cent a year—that is turning out to be more dangerous to the government's strict order than any Communist tract.

"Many young people are just looking at the government as more and more old-fashioned," one young man explained, "and mostly they figure it's irrelevant."

The grandchildren of Taiwan's rulers are swinging into an age Sun Yat-sen never dreamed of, exchanging the

Togetherness Taiwan Style

A couple with mother-in-law and two children cling to the family motorcycle during a weekend outing in southern Taiwan. Wages are low but demand for modern goods is high in Taiwan. And many people compromise by living poorly but buying expensively — motorbikes and television sets are the most desirable items.

Times Running Parallel

Sometimes in Taiwan it's hard to figure out what decade you're in — for example, when you see a farmer bringing home the harvest on a water buffalo cart, only 100 yards away from the shrieking afterburner of an F-5 jet preparing for a patrol flight from Tainan air force base.

Play Ball

The early morning hush of a Confucian temple at Tainan is broken by the crack of a baseball bat. There is baseball in the streets, baseball in abandoned rice, paddies, even baseball next to air raid shelters on Quemoy. Baseball is everywhere in Taiwan.

Fashions Change

Behind a traditionally dressed peasant woman on her way back from market in Taipei walks a girl of Taiwan's younger generation dressed in international teenage high fashion. The grandchildren of Taiwan's elderly rulers are swinging into an age Sun Yat-sen never dreamed of, exchanging the trappings of the past for the gear of a mod present imported from Japan and the United States.

Venerable Members

A girl employee of the Taiwan National Assembly in Taipei guides elderly members to their seats. Most of the Assembly's members are now in their late 70s and 80s — oldtime politicians from pre-revolutionary China belonging to the mainland Kuomintang party.

The Shipbreakers

Taiwan's children are not required to attend school — many go to work as soon as they're old enough to help with a cutting torch in a steel yard. Here, a steelcutter stands by with his torch, while a young boy takes a hand with the job in the world's largest shipbreaking yard at Kao Hsiung in southern Taiwan. The yard breaks up nearly 200 large oceangoing ships a year.

Progress Could Create Ironical Downfall For People of Taiwan trappings of the past for the gear of a mod present imported from Japan and the United States.

Taiwan is moving out of the countryside into the cities and, like most such nations, baseball is everywhere.

The early morning hush of a Confucian temple is broken by the crack of a bat, and the flying ball threatens to knock down a row of ancestor tablets. Baseball in the streets, baseball in abandoned rice paddies even baseball next to air raid shelters on Quemoy.

Sudden prosperity has had its negative side.

At the government's much-vaunted Export Processing Zone in the south port of Kaohsiung, thousands of girls straight from the farms labor to support the economy and win themselves a dowry at $35 a month.

Tune that intermediate frequency transformer, stitch that cuff, polish that guitar ... 40,000 pretty maids all in a row creating 30 per cent of Taiwan's foreign exchange profits every year.

Taiwan's children are not required to attend school and many go to work as soon as they're old enough to help with a cutting torch in a steel yard.

Wages are low, but the demand for modern goods is high. Many compromise by living poorly but buying expensively, squatting in abandoned homes with new television sets.

About one-third of farm houses have television.

The countryside is quieter, but no less caught in a conflict between Confucius and Twiggy than are the cities.

The modern world has even invaded those most crucial Chinese ceremonies, weddings and funerals.

"When we get married these days, a girl is expected to provide a motorbike or a television as part of her dowry," one Taiwanese girl said. "Anything else isn't really enough."

And when modern Taiwanese burn paper funeral houses to send to their dead ancestors, the houses always include small paper models of a television set, washing machine or a car. Those who want to be sure of their departed's pleasure might even throw in a paper helicopter or two.

Despite the modern additions, most farm life remains basically traditional. As likely as not, a pig pen will be on the other side of the wall from the television set, and an indoor privy usually graces the bedroom.

Taiwan's major domestic problem since 1949 also remains unchanged.

Of the island's 5 million persons, 13 million are what is referred to as Taiwanese — the descendants of coastal Chinese who settled Taiwan about 300 years ago and made a life for themselves that was seldom encroached upon by governments from the China mainland.

The remainder are mainlanders, largely those who fled China in 1949 when Mao Tse-tung drove Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government into exile on Taiwan.

A separate group of various aborigine tribes originally occupied the island but were pushed back into the hills 300 years ago by the first wave of mainlanders.

The aftertaste of riots that occurred when the Nationalists first took over still lingers, and neither group is overly fond of the other.

These feelings were worsened by the act the mainlanders reserved for themselves top posts in both the military and government. Taiwanese, not allowed to govern the island, have gone into business, and now control much of the island's wealth.

These past divisions still hold true in many cases. Most villages have a Taiwanese village chief and police chief, but also a mainlanders as "political affairs officer" or "village administrator." Little is done without his permission.

The pattern has been changing recently, however. Particularly at the county and province level, many young Taiwanese have taken on important positions in the last two or three years.

If any one thing has drawn young Taiwanese and mainlanders together, however, it has been the recent relaxation in Washington-Peking relations.

Some regard this looming vision not so much as a threat as a sign they must begin to go it alone.

"Look at those people," one young man said recently, pointing to brightly dressed couples coming out of a movie theater.

"They can make Communists out of farmers, but they could never make Communists out of them," he said, turning into a coffee shop.

Others feel a threat they fear the government is not responding to.

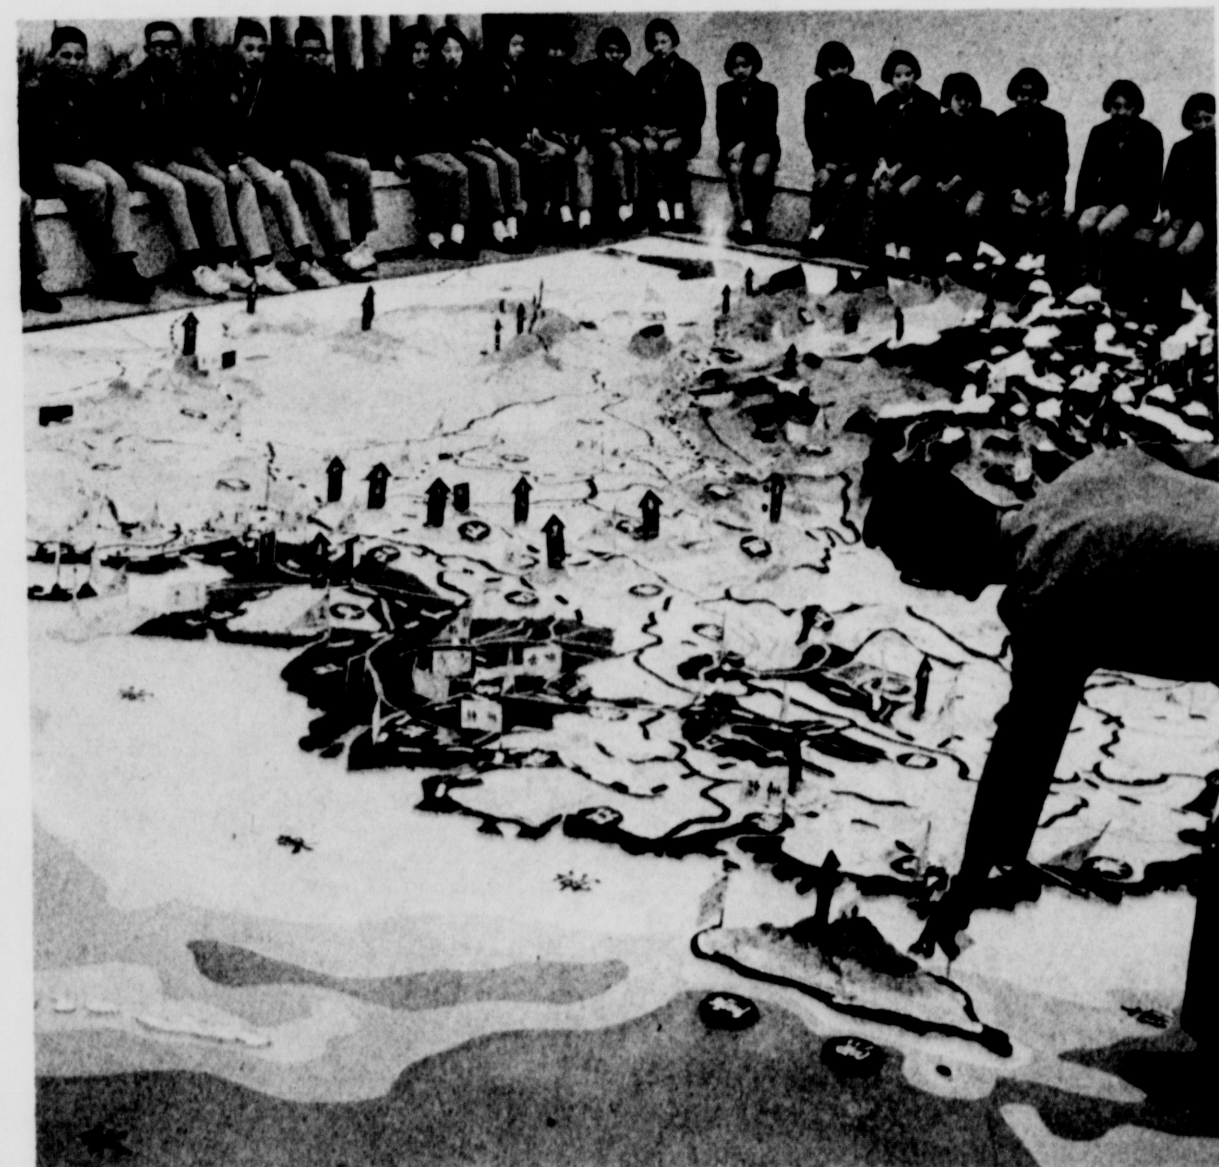

"Most of those old men just want to die well, or retire to the United States," one young man said. "If we don't want to be ruled from Peking it will be up to us—not them—to do something about it."

Chinese Disneyland

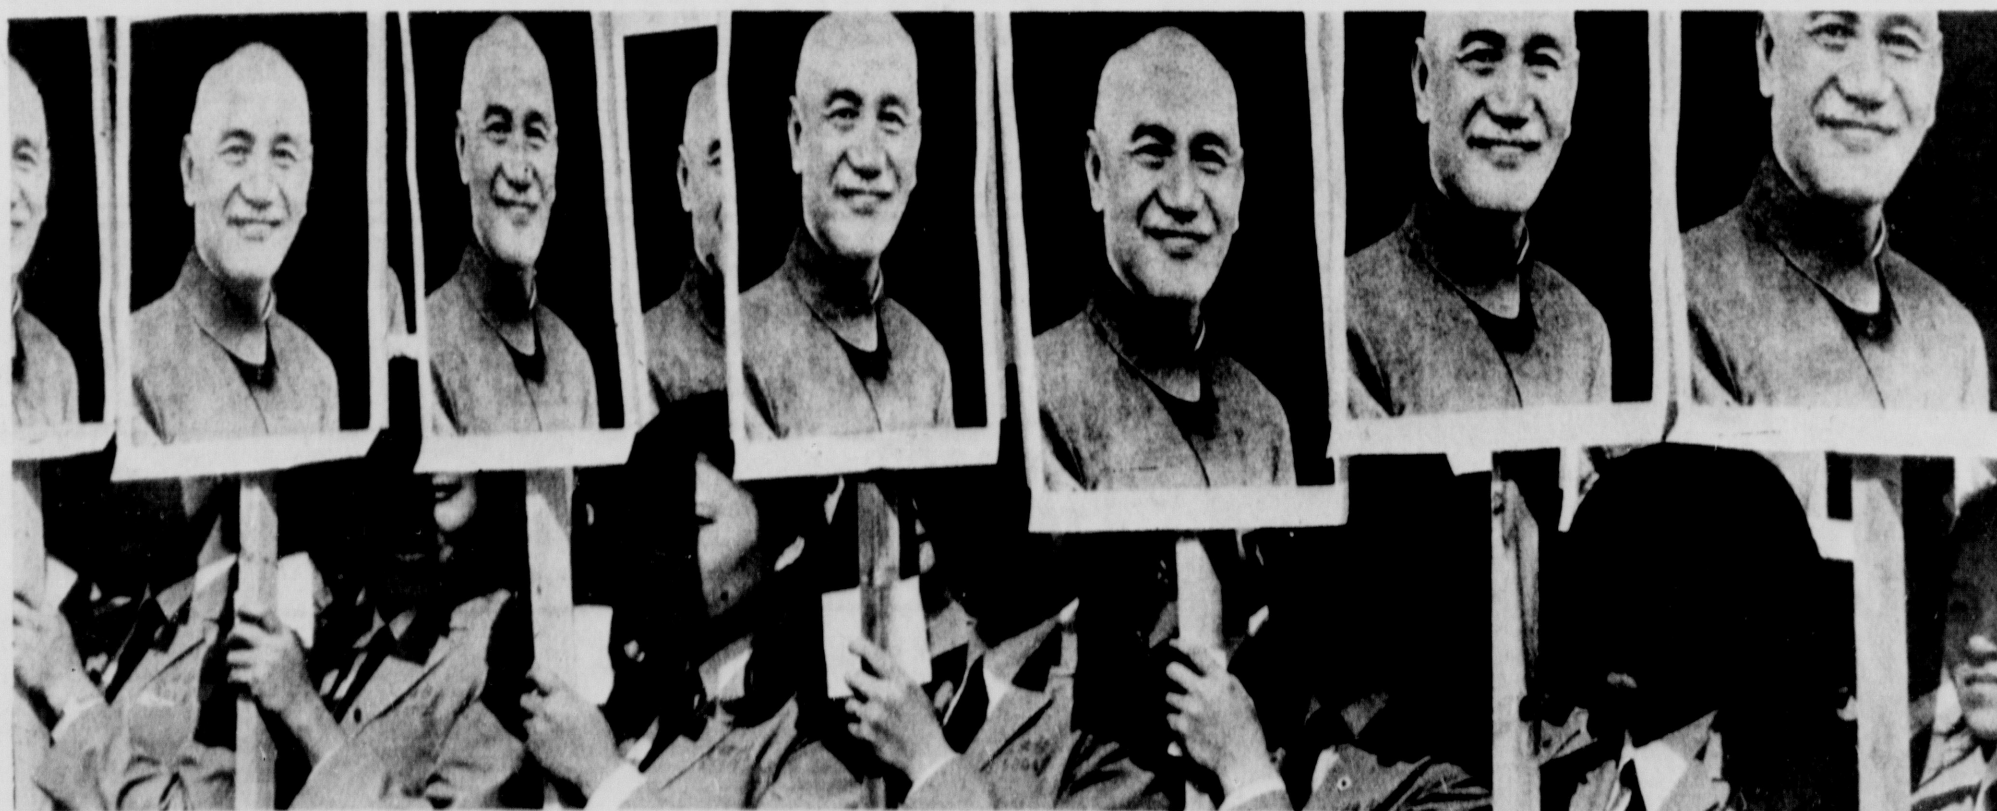

A ride on the floating dragon is obviously a great attraction for youngsters in Taipei — even for some parents, too. The dragon is one of the features of an amusement park, a kind of Chinese Disneyland, near the Taiwanese capital's zoological gardens.

This Is Taiwan

An instructor points out the island of Taiwan during a geography and political class at a senior high school in Kinmen, Quemoy. Behind the island stretches the huge expanse of mainland China, on a large plaster relief map in the school yard.

Regimented Devotion

Lines of well-drilled schoolgirls, on parade in Taipei, Taiwan's capital, hold up their identical pictures of Chiang Kai-shek — showing him some 20 years ago. Wearing the usual prescribed dress and haircuts, they are taking part in government-organized celebrations in honor of the Generalissimo's election to a fifth term as president.

Brazilians Ski Without Snow

GARIBALDI, Brazil (AP) — Looking for a really off beat winter sport? Try tropical skiing in Brazil. You can ski all year round in your Bermudas and a T-shirt. There is sledding to your heart's content and an unending supply of champagne. There's just one hitch: no snow. Garibaldi, population 8,000, founded by Italian immigrants in Southern Brazil's wine country, has Latin America's only artificial ski slopes. But so what if there's no snow. Garibaldi has everything else: a 40-seat chairlift, nearly 1,000 meters (more than half a mile) of slopes for beginners and intermediates, ski instructors dressed in flame-red sweaters, and a cozy ski lodge with a fireplace to warm the after-ski crowd when the mercury hits a low of 59 degrees.

There's also an air conditioner in case it gets a bit warmer. Soon, it will have a skating rink (for the roller skate crowd), a ski-jumping trampoline, and a skyscraper hotel in the shape of a champagne bottle. "President Medici Ski Station" is the brainchild of David Santini, a 38-year-old Brazilian civil engineer who caught the ski bug on his honeymoon in Italy 10 years ago. Longing to do something for his hometown, he combed Europe for ideas for artificial ski slopes. After trying everything from plastic to rubber, Santini settled for polyethylene, started a factory which produces bathmats at slack times during the year, and bought the handsome real estate overlooking Garibaldi. Five years and $180,000 later, without a single bank loan, Santini had cleared the brush around the pinetrees and the cactus and clamped 120,000 pieces of polyethylene triangles together on three runs. Soon, the town of Garibaldi was building its own special light skis in guajuvira tropical wood, and special boots with soft cushioning replacing heavy socks as internal protection. For the prospective skier, Garibaldi is an 82 mile drive from the coastal city of Porto Alegre. For about $3 a ski buff can rent skis, shoes, and an instructor for an hour on the slopes, with the lift thrown in free. Skiing on polyethylene is faster than on snow. The snow-plow technique works, but it takes a bit longer to turn. Advanced skiers say parallel turning and braking does not stop you as suddenly as on powder or even crusty snow. If you take a tumble, the matchstick style "hairs" of the polyethylene give you about the same reception as a bathmat would if you slid out of your tub. To make your trip smoother, Santini has devised a system to lubricate your skis with two sponge-covered rollers impregnated with simple gas station motor oil. You "grease up" before every time you go down.

Captain Marvel Gets No Respect

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "All my life I knew this would happen," mused William Marvel as he put on the tights and cape he and friends had designed with the help of a comic book. Marvel, 25, planned an Air Force career as a teen-ager. He graduated from the Air Force Academy, became a second lieutenant, then a first lieutenant. Then—Shazam—captain. Capt. Marvel wore his costume to a party celebrating his promotion. "Holy Moley," said some of the guests. On Monday he was back at work, for the first time in his new rank, as an astronautical engineer at the Air Force Space and Missile Systems Organization. He answered the telephone and told the caller who he was. "Sure," was the answer, "and I'm Superman."

Sedalian Has Earned His MD Degree

Dr. Robert W. Hyatt

In graduation exercises held recently at the University of Missouri-Columbia, Robert W. Hyatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Hyatt, Route 5, received his Doctor of Medicine degree. Dr. Hyatt, a graduate of Smithton High School, received a bachelor of science degree from MU. He will reside with his family in Columbia, where he will serve an internship in the department of internal medicine at the University of Missouri Medical Center and the Veterans' Administration Hospital.

Discussion On Several Subjects

Tuesday's meeting of the Noon Optimist Club at Bothwell Hotel was an open meeting designed to allow the discussion of several subjects. The club decided to hold a Ladies' Night on July 29 in place of the regular Tuesday meeting, July 25. Donating $50 to the meals-on-wheels program highlighted the session. The program gives elderly people two meals per day for five days a week. To be eligible the elderly must not be able to cook or be in need of temporary help due to illness. Eventually it is hoped that this program will become self-supporting. Also discussed was the cost of publishing the weekly club bulletin. Arrangements were made to continue it on a weekly basis. Next week's program will feature Frank Branson and deal with men's hair styles. Kenny Schulb Jr. will serve as program chairman.

Annexation Proposal Is Opposed

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KNOB NOSTER — At a recent meeting of the Comprehensive Planning Committee here, over 75 per cent of those attending were not Knob Noster citizens — at least yet. Spurred on by worry of being annexed by the city and hence losing free fire and police department protection, about 50 residents from outlying areas came to the committee's meeting to register their disapproval during the annexation discussion. Knob Noster has already filed suit in Johnson County Circuit Court, Warrensburg, to annex 2,800 acres, which would more than double the town's present 1,750 acres. Residents in the proposed annexation area have secured an attorney to fight the case. A spokesman for the dissenting landowners said they "opposed it (the annexation plan) as it now stands because it does not include certain roads ... also, part of the state park will be infringed on."

Delaying New Model Production

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has announced a one-week postponement of its introduction of 1973 model passenger cars because of government antipollution regulations.

Introduction dates on Ford's 1973 trucks will be delayed two weeks, according to Board Chairman Henry Ford II and President Lee Iacocca.

In a joint statement Monday, they said the auto company would extend its production period for 1972 models in North America.

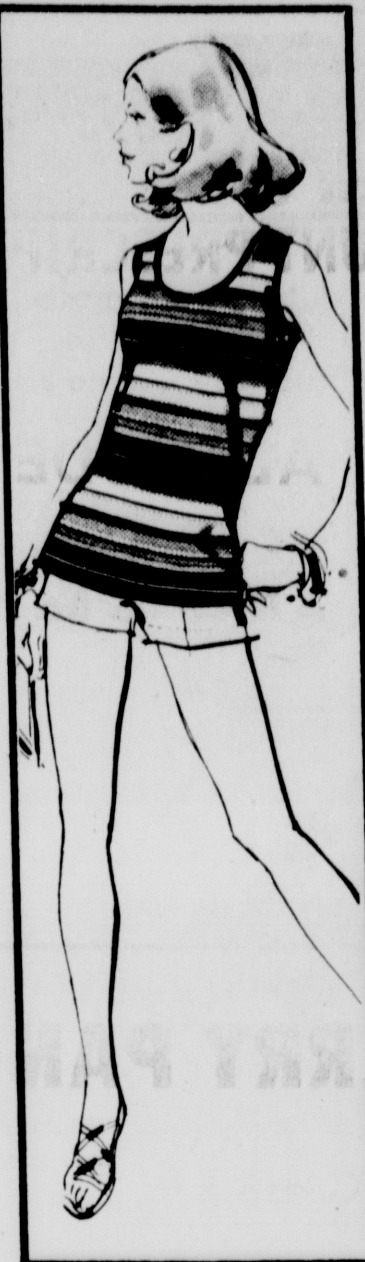

The announcement appeared to ease fears that Ford might have to shut down assembly plants.

Ford said the 1973 cars will be introduced Sept. 22, instead of Sept. 15, while the truck introduction date has been set back from Sept. 15 to Sept. 29.

Last week, Environmental Protection Administrator William Ruckelshaus said he would allow Ford to produce and ship its 1973 cars provided initial tests indicated they would meet federal emission control standards in full-scale testing.

Ruckelshaus said all of Ford's 1973 test vehicles had received unscheduled, unauthorized and unreported maintenance to a degree that made the test data unacceptable for certification.

Ford and Iacocca complained that they were being required to meet stricter standards than competitors.

Leader Leading Busy Life

By MARTIN KRUMMING
Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The long gravel road leads to just the spot one might expect a musical conductor, artist or anyone who values peace and quiet to live.

Jorge Mester's small, wooden and stone cottage surrounded by acres of rambling farm and woodland is about 20 miles from downtown Louisville.

A barn and a larger house owned by a judge stand nearby. Chickens scurry in the yard.

In one of Mester's rooms sheet music lies on a table and piano. There is a viola propped in the corner which the 37-year-old conductor of the Louisville Orchestra still plays.

Occasionally Mester, a personable, highly respected musician from Mexico City, will take walks through the countryside but much of his day is spent studying and rehearsing.

In addition to the Louisville orchestra Mester is musical adviser for the Kansas City Symphony and is director of the Aspen, Colo., Musical Festival in the summer.

His schedule is hectic. Besides commuting between Louisville and Kansas City during the year, Mester also has a long list of guest appearances and is already well booked for next year.

He has conducted symphonies in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Los Angeles, Cincinnati and New Orleans and around the world.

His desire is to "conduct as many orchestras as possible. I want to make as much music as I can."

Mester's love for the Louisville orchestra after 12 years teaching at Juilliard in New York was instantaneous.

"I was attracted by the name of the orchestra. It is known extremely well around the world. Its records are often played on European stations."

That love has never dimmed.

Antihijacking Costs Debated

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Secor D. Browne, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, says the federal government should assume the responsibility, including costs, of antihijacking efforts on airliners.

In an Alumni Day speech Monday at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Browne said he believed a unified program would be more effective than the system now operated by airports, airlines, crews and state and federal governments.

The former MIT professor said that in several European countries, including Britain, the government operates antihijacking systems.

More than 1,000 alumni returned to the MIT campus to hear six speakers, including Browne and Col. David R. Scott, who commanded the Apollo 15 on its moon flight.

Orthodontist's Fee Is Fair

By PETER WEAVER

Q — Our little boy has front teeth that protrude. We took him to an orthodontist who said it would take 18 months of work and visits costing more than $1,000. Is this an unreasonable price? — Mrs. B.C., Bethesda, Md.

A — No, orthodontal work can cost anywhere from $750 to more than $2,000 depending on the length of treatment time and co-operation of the patient.

The best bet is to have your child's dentist recommend an orthodontist. Shopping around to get the best price can be expensive in itself. Orthodontists have to take X-rays and make molds of upper and lower teeth before they can give you an estimate of time and costs. This preliminary examination work costs around $50.

If there are any dental insurance programs of prepayment dental programs nearby, these can save money if you know orthodontal work is needed. Also, the more co-operative the young patient, the less you will have to pay. Sometimes temporary retainers have to be worn for so many hours a day. If they're not, the whole process takes more time and money. If retainers are broken, they cost $50 extra.

Parents should have a long talk with an orthodontist before work is done. All costs, payment schedules and treatment should be spelled out.

Q — Are water-powered cleaning devices good for one's teeth and gums? — Mrs. C.A., New York City

A — Dentists who have studied these high-pressure water guns say they do a good job under certain circumstances. For example, they're good for children who have permanent orthodontal braces. They're also good for adults who have bridgework or gum problems. Check with your dentist before buying.

Consumer Reports (June, 1971) reviewed several electrical and several faucet-powered models. Some models cost as much as $36. For an inexpensive trial you might try the Dento-Spray MA faucet-powered model which costs only $6.

Dentists say water cleaners are not really necessary for people with normal, healthy mouths. The use of dental floss and "wiggle" brushing of gums are still the best bet for oral hygiene.

Q — We have been invaded by carpenter ants. We want to use powdered chlordane and chlordane spray. Are they safe? — Mrs. R.R., Wyndmoor, Pa.

A — County agriculture extension agents (you can find them under your county government in the phone book) say that chlordane has a long residual effect and repeated applications are not recommended.

It may be better, agents say, to spray areas of lawn or yard where the ants are concentrating with diazinon (Spectracide) which doesn't have a long residual life. You can use this chemical safely many times but only outside the house.

Q — My thumbnails are rough and have ridges running crosswise. The cuticles are also dry and rough. What can I use? — Mrs. L.J., Chicago, Ill.

A — Any nail problems that persist may be caused by some undetected illness and should be checked by a doctor. Nails can be affected by other nonmedical factors.

For example, you can get rough nails by typing, piano playing or nail biting. If you're not allergic, you can protect fragile nails with several coats of clear nail polish. Too much pressure on the nail when you push down to remove excess cuticle can cause ridges as the nails grow.

For more information on nails, you can get a booklet "Nails — Care and Treatment," by sending 30 cents to: American Medical Assn., 535 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60610.

Growling Stomach Is Embarrassing

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am a 16-year-old girl who has a small but embarrassing problem. My stomach growls a lot and makes funny noises. When I am with a date at a movie and everything is quiet, it seems to growl twice as much and twice as loud. It embarrasses me to death and I don't know what to do. I have tried holding my breath, tightening my stomach, taking deep breaths and not drinking fluids before I go out. I've also tried ignoring it, but nothing seems to help. Could you please tell me what causes this and how I can prevent it? Please try to print this before too long because I would like to have a cure before my next date. This may not seem important to you but it is very important to me. I have about decided to stop dating because it bothers me so much.

Dear Reader — That's not an easy problem to solve. It is caused by the normal contractions of the digestive tract. The entire long digestive tube is lined with muscles which contract to propel food in a normal fashion. The digestive tract is very susceptible to emotions and excitement. There are many things which will cause it to become "overactive." One of these is being hungry. It is literally true that a person's stomach growls when they are hungry. You might try eating before you go out on a date, rather than avoiding fluids.

No doubt it increases when you are on a date because you are a bit nervous. Perhaps after you have dated a little longer or are better acquainted with your date, this problem will not be quite so great. You might keep in mind that everyone has this in some degree and it is perfectly normal, so why be embarrassed about it? If you are a good listener, you might find your boy friend's stomach growls, too.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I read the article about the woman with the problem of swollen lips. I had this same problem for a year and avoided many different kinds of food and still had trouble. I finally found out that it was caused by two different brands of lipstick I was using.

Dear Reader — That's very thoughtful of you. It illustrates again the multitude of different things which can cause people to be allergic and have swelling of the face or lip which is called angioneurotic edema. This again points up why doctors have so much trouble finding out what causes an allergy. It can be anything from lipstick or other cosmetics to things in the air, foods or even medicines. Another reader found it was aspirin.

Officers Elected By Board

The regular monthly meeting of the P. Ace Merit System Personnel Board Tuesday night in the Mayor's office saw the installation of the two members approved Monday night by the City Council, an election of officers and the interviewing of prospective patrolmen.

Mayor Jerry Jones nominated Jim Gwinn and Jay D. Bartley for the board in Council action Monday night. Bartley was serving on the board at the time of his appointment, and will fill out the unexpired term of former councilman George Dotson. Gwinn replaces John W. St. Clair on the board. St. Clair left the board Tuesday night after serving on it six years.

The present board members agreed to send St. Clair a letter of appreciation for his service on the board.

In other action the board voted by acclamation to retain Robert S. Johnson as their chairman and elected Gwinn to be secretary of the board.

The board meeting was then closed to the press while members interviewed men who had taken and passed a test given May 18 for prospective police officers.

Those placed on the eligibility list and to be recommended for positions as patrolmen were Robert McClelland, Enos Johnson and Willis Jewell.

Patterson Withdraws His Effort

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Sen. J. F. Patterson, D-Caruthersville, has withdrawn as a candidate in the new 25th Senatorial District of extreme southeastern Missouri and thrown his support to Sen. Nelson B. Tamm, D-Hornersville.

The only other candidate is Mayor Randall E. Ramsey of Parma, brother of New Madrid County Sheriff W. L. Ramsey Jr. Ramsey has the support of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' political ally, Hal E. Hunter of New Madrid.

The winner of the Democratic nomination is assured of election since there are no Republican candidates.

Patterson, who will be 65 in September, is president pro tem of the Senate and for 10 years served as chairman of the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee, where he preached fiscal responsibility to his colleagues and urged them not to spend more than existing revenue.

He has also served as chairman of the Budget Control Committee, which must act on all bills calling for expenditure of $50,000 or more in new appropriations.

Patterson is in the construction business at Sikeston with his son and said the business is taking more and more of his time.

At one time he and the governor cooperated closely but in recent years they have differed on budgetary and political matters.

Patterson said he would remain active in politics and also would support Rep. Vic Downing, D-Bragg City, for re-election. He said he would endorse other candidates later and work for them.

Assails Program Criticism

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Lester Cooper is the executive producer, creator and writer of ABC's award-winning Sunday morning children's show, "Make A Wish." He is proud of the product but is getting impatient about the blanket criticism of children's programs.

"The only way television—network television—can continue to do something good in this area is to have people out there say that there is something good," Cooper said. "Dammit, don't keep telling me how bad television is; look at it and see if you can't find something good. It's there."

ABC tapped Cooper to create a new children's show about a year ago.

"We had been doing 'Discovery' and it was a good show but the kids grew up with it and we found we were reaching too old an audience," Cooper said. "We wanted a new concept for the ones between 6 and 12."

Cooper and his staff came up with a form involving everything from quick cuts from one subject to another in "Laugh-In" style, to animation and even music.

"We move fast and we don't stop to explain," he said. "The younger ones enjoy the visual part and the others get it or they don't. I remember writing one show about flying and at one point I mentioned Icarus. I just said he had wax wings and flew too close to the sun so they melted. I only hope that sometime Icarus may be mentioned and some kid who saw the show will say 'Oh, oh, I know something about that,' and be interested to know more."

For next season's 32 shows, Cooper has picked subjects from migratory patterns of deer to the shape of trains of the future.

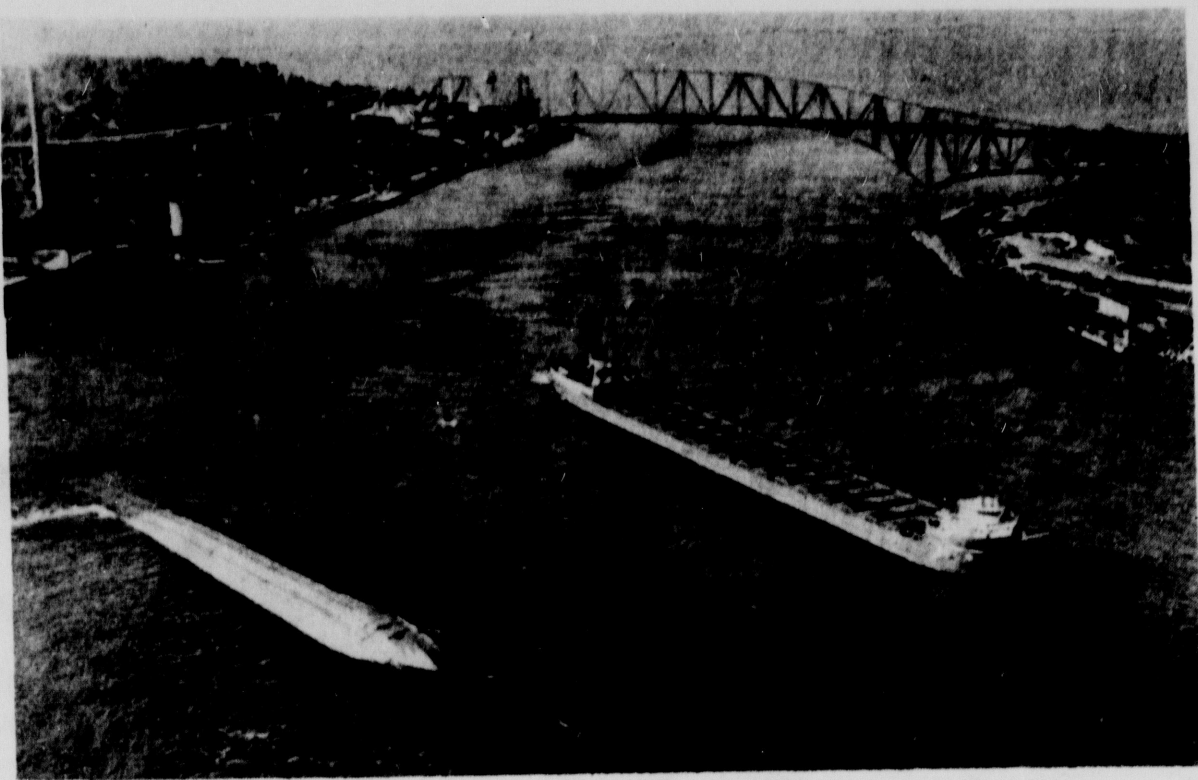

The producer has three teenagers of his own and believes youngsters today are particular challenges to their parents "because the world has changed and so have attitudes."

"Kids have a right to ask questions now," Cooper said. "I tell my boy he cannot ride his bicycle at night. He immediately asks me why I got him a light to put on it. That's hard to answer."

"The main point I'm trying to make," he summed up, "is that the networks are willing to do good children's programs. But we need support. Unless we get it, what's the point of trying to do it?"

Shipping Halted

Shipping was halted again on the St. Clair River near Port Huron, Mich., Tuesday when men working on the capsized steamer Sidney Smith, left, said seams were splitting under the

Quiz Director On Pay Raises

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state Fiscal Affairs Committee grilled Dr. Harold Robb, acting director of the state Division of Mental Health, for more than an hour Tuesday about unauthorized pay hikes for higher paid employees.

When asked who authorized the salary increases, Robb answered: "Me."

The committee, made up of seven state senators and representatives, did not mask their displeasure at the $90,000 plus salary increases from April to June 31 which would cost about $400,000 to continue through the coming fiscal year.

They voted 9 to 2 to call the "violation of legislative intent" to the attention of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and ask that Robb be directed to go back to the line-item budget passed by the legislature.

In effect, that could mean 938 of the division's 10,000 employees who got raises April 1 would go back to their old salaries. Most were for higher paid workers and professionals.

The committee also agreed to call the state Mental Health Commission to Jefferson City June 27 to let them know how they feel about the raises.

Members took the position that it was the intent of the General Assembly that a state-paid retirement and insurance plan took the place of pay raises for all state workers. The committee chairman said demonstrations last month in Kansas City by mental health workers who did not get pay hikes was "only the beginning of morale problems."

Sen. Donald L. Manford, D-Kansas City, Senate appropriations chairman and chairman of the Fiscal Affairs Committee, called for the confrontation at the committee's May meeting. He and House appropriations chairman E. J. "Lucky" Cantrell, D-Overland, led the quiz but others voiced their displeasure too.

Robb said the money for the pay increases for the rest of the fiscal year came from funds for the nursing home placement program. He said no money was appropriated to continue the program through the coming fiscal year anyway. He said the $400,000 for continuing the pay raises would be "up to individual hospital superintendents to find" through delayed recruitment and management.

Cantrell, who made the motion to put the agency back on its approved budget, told Robb, "I am very disappointed with your administration of the division," and stalked out of the room after asking Robb what right he had to drop the nursing home placement program before the end of the year.

Cantrell said Robb was "going to have to cut services some place and we don't agree programs should be curtailed — we don't agree with your priorities."

Manford told Robb it was the legislature's responsibility to run state government, not individual agency heads.

"Somebody has to run state government and that is the legislature's job," Manford said to which Robb asked if he would also take the responsibility.

"We accept the responsibility when we approve the budget and you are to stay within the guidelines of the budget," Manford snapped.

Thursday Concert Scheduled

The Sedalia Concert Band will give its second performance of the season at Liberty Park at 8 p.m. Thursday with "When the Saints Go Marching In" by Walters, topping the agenda.

Under the direction of Lloyd H. Knox, the band will also perform "The New Colonial March," Hall; "Inka Dinka Do," Durante, Ryan and Donnelly; "The Pajama Game," Adler and Rossi; "Invercargil March," Lithgow and Laurendeau; "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," Mason; "Our Own Thing," Madden; "If You Knew Susie (Like I Know Susie)" by Desylvia and Meyer; and "The Trombone King March," King.

After the intermission, the group will present, "Gloria March," Lose and Sereby; "A Night in June," King; "Colonel Miner's March," Rosenkrans; "I Left My Heart in San Francisco," Cross, Cory and Reed; "Beautiful Ohio," Earl; and "The Billboard March," Klor.

Theatrical Review of 1971-72 Season Is Fitting

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — High-lights and footnotes on the 1971-72 theater season:

Forty-eight assorted shows opened on Broadway from last June through May 31, an increase of five from the preceding semester. Angels backed esthetic-entertainment hunches with $10 million, of which $6 million quickly vanished.

Balancing off the dismal statistics of 29 fast flops, were such fresh box office dandies as "The Prisoner of Second Avenue," "Sugar" and "Jesus Christ Superstar."

Seventeen, holdovers from previous seasons also departed, including "Man of La Mancha," which earned $5 million profit on a $200,000 out; "Promises, Promises" and "1776," each netting $1.5 million on $500,000 investments; and "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," which made another $450,000 for Neil Simon on a $150,000 expenditure.

Along with Simon's continuing supremacy as a surefire crowd pleaser, an interesting backstage event was the emergence of Joseph Papp as at least temporary successor to David Merrick as the street's astutest producer.

Highlight Performance

Cliff Gorman is pictured in his dressing room in the New York theater where he's appearing in "Lenny" — behind him is a blowup of Lenny Bruce.

Two Papp displays, the drama "Stick and Bones" and the musical "Two Gentlemen of Verona" won top Tony Awards.

At his off-Broadway headquarters, the founder of New York's free Shakespeare Festival generated further excitement with seven productions including "That Championship Season," a likely future prizewinner.

Boxoffice grosses were up with raised ticket prices but there was wide concern and all sorts of theories about declining attendance for all but the biggest hits.

In addition to Main Stem activity, off-Broadway production rose from last year's 50 to 58 exhibits, and sustained a worthy effort continued in such organizations as the La Mama troupe, Chelsea, Roundabout, Negro Ensemble, American Place and Lincoln Center Forum workshops.

Among the happiest performers of the season were Alexis Smith, Sada Thompson, Elizabeth Wilson, Lee Grant, Phil Silvers, Larry Blyden, Cliff Gorman, Vincent Gardenia and Peter Falk.

The unluckiest included Richard Kiley and Karen Morrow, each in two quick failures; Elizabeth Ashley, Gwen Verdon and Pat Hingle.

Carriers Criticize Pressure

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "They're using a bull whip on people," said an official of the National Association of Letter Carriers, adding that any increase in postal service efficiency has been the result of increased pressure on employees.

"I think they're becoming ridiculous with their pressure," Collis Bosworth, president of the Kansas City local of the NALC said Monday.

Bosworth's comments followed an announcement that postal employees will be encouraged to take early retirement in order to reduce the work force.

He said coffee breaks have been eliminated for some workers, and employees at one branch have been told there will be no overtime work regardless of the mail load. He also said some carrier routes are being lengthened, although they already require eight hours to cover.

Postmaster Ted C. Bland, who also is district manager for 128 post offices in the Kansas City area, said there have been no changes in overtime policies or work breaks. He also said there has been no conscious effort to heighten the work load for the individual mailmen.

"Postal employees as a whole are doing a more efficient job," he said.

Camp Investment Planned By Jaycees

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A decision was reached over the weekend by Missouri's Jaycees to invest an additional $75,000 into Camp Wonderland, the retreat they are developing at the Lake of the Ozarks for handicapped children.

The decision was made as officers of the state's 168 Jaycee chapters held a workshop at Columbia.

Darrell Stick of Kirksville, state president, announced that the first class of 24 children will begin a one-week outing at Camp Wonderland June 18.

He said the $75,000 budget allotment will be used for a dining hall, a staff cottage and a sewer survey.

Pork Adds Variety To Meals

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

On May 25, 1539, Hernando de Soto landed on the shores of Florida with 600 soldiers and 13 pigs. Today the hog population of the United States is close to 60 million and the average American eats 68 pounds of pork a year.

When the covered wagons began rumbling westward, the pig went with them. He was a hardy traveler and able to hold his own against the animals of the forest where he had to forage for food.

Small hams and stringy bacon were the yield of these "razorbacks" and stump roosters. Pork as we know it today did not become available until the settlers began using the Indian corn, which was so abundant, as feed, thus changing the hog from a scavenger to a plump farm animal.

Someone once asked James Beard, the famed epicure, what meat he would choose if he could only eat the flesh of one animal the rest of his life. Without hesitation, Beard chose pork.

Pork is beyond doubt the world's most versatile meat, and you could feature it at every meal for days without repeating a single dish. Here you have the makings for great rosy-hued hams, toothsome bacon, succulent pork roasts, tender chops and spicy sausage.

Pork adds substance and flavor to scores of sausage types. Fresh pork is the basic ingredient for country sausage meat and links and fresh thuringer style sausage. In the many varieties of bologna and frankfurters, pork is combined with beef for endless taste combinations as well as in salami, cervelat, Polish sausage, bratwurst, bockwurst, mettwurst and countless other blends of meats and spices.

No matter how fresh pork is prepared, it is vital to remember one thing, it must be cooked until it is well done and slow cooking is recommended.

Pork can be prepared by roasting, braising, broiling, frying and boiling. Each method produces distinctly different dishes and all are delectable.

Smoked, the meat opens up a whole new field of delicacies including Canadian bacon, cured ham and pork tenderloin.

One dish that is both a hearty meal and gourmet treat is the French country-style pork chop.

FRENCH COUNTRY-STYLE PORK CHOPS

- 4 medium carrots
 - 2 celery stalks
 - tips of eight scallions
 - 4 white onions chopped
 - 16 ounces stewed tomatoes
 - 1 1/2 teaspoon ground majoram
 - 1 bay leaf
 - dash thyme
 - 1/4 cup chopped parsley
 - 3/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 - 1/2 teaspoon paprika
 - 1/2 cup beef consomme
 - 1/2 cup dry white wine
- 2 pounds center cut pork chops with fat trimmed down
- Dice carrots, celery and scallions. Combine with onions, tomatoes, marjoram, bay leaf, thyme, parsley, salt, pepper and paprika. Add consomme and wine and bring to a boil. Simmer, covered, for 5 minutes.
- Put pork chops on top of vegetables. Cover and simmer for about one hour or until thoroughly done. Place vegetables in center of serving dish and surround with pork chops. Serve with a cold rose wine. Serves four.

Guidelines For Engagements And Weddings

Wedding pictures and stories should be turned in on the Thursday preceding the wedding, if possible. No wedding stories or pictures will be accepted more than two weeks after the event. Pictures of the bride only will be published.

Engagement pictures will be published on Sunday only and must be submitted by noon Thursday preceding.

In order to better serve readers with more timely news, the following policy will be followed:

Showers and receptions must be turned in within three days of the time they occur and will not be included in the wedding story.

Pictures may be picked up at The Democrat-Capital office on the Monday following publication, but none will be returned by mail unless accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The Democrat will not be responsible for damage which might occur to pictures submitted for publication.

Forms for engagement announcements and weddings are available at The Democrat-Capital office.

ABWA Boss of the Year

Named Boss of the Year at the Tuesday "Dinner on the Moon" held for members of American Business Women's Association, their husbands, bosses and wives, Pat Allen, comptroller for Parkhurst Mfg. Co., accepts a trophy from Boss Night chairman, Mrs. Stan Ragar. Allen was also presented a moon helmet in keeping with the dinner theme held at the Old Missouri Homestead. Allen was nominated for the honor by his secretary, Mrs. Norman Capps. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

At Boss Night Dinner

Mallory Addresses Group

Commissioner of Education, Dr. Arthur Mallory, Jefferson City, addressed 135 members and guests of the Sedalia Chapter of American Business Women's Association at their annual Boss Night Dinner Tuesday at the Old Missouri Homestead.

When posing the question as to what a group such as ABWA could do to insure education that will last more permanently than such new concepts as new math, Mallory proposed four suggestions.

First he said, "We owe it to our employers to be prepared and to do the best job possible at all times. Work has dignity and we cannot afford to manufacture shoddy products in America." Then Mallory suggested that stronger educational, religious and domestic institutions were needed.

Mallory's third suggestion was that youngsters need to understand that service is an important and enduring quality of life. "That service will endure is something that can be taught by the example of adults," he said. Finally Mallory told the group that people must learn to worship God with humility.

Mallory was introduced at the dinner whose theme was "Dinner on the Moon" by Mrs. Earl McClanahan.

Mrs. Myrna Ragar, Boss Night chairman, introduced former recipients of the Boss of the Year Award William R. Parkhurst, Richard Parkhurst, W. L. Rogers and Merrill Stromborn.

Pat Allen, comptroller for Parkhurst Mfg. Co., was named 1972 Boss of the Year. A graduate of the University of Nebraska, Allen is active locally in the United Fund, Sunset Optimist Club and Boy Scouts. He also worked actively for the junior high tax levy. Allen was nominated by his secretary, Mrs. Norman Capps.

He was presented an engraved trophy and a moon helmet. In response to the honor Allen said, "the girls who work for us do a tremendous job. As they have honored us tonight, we also want to express thanks to them."

Special music following the buffet dinner was provided by the Barbershop Quartet of the Helen G. Steele Music Club and guests were introduced by Mrs. Ragar.

The history and purpose of ABWA was given by Miss Mary Merritt and the vocational talk was presented by Mrs. Nathalia Poynter, who works in the piece goods department of J. C. Penney Co.

Hand Lawn Mower Is Gardening Tool

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for gardeners who have trouble making straight and even rows across the garden plot. It is so easy if you use an old hand lawn mower which makes two rows just the right width at the same time. Be sure the first row is straight and push mower across then pull it backwards in the same row as it makes a much deeper row when it drags. Save the old mower and then give this a try. — MRS. B. E. L.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is — DRIVES. Several years ago when many charities were consolidated we felt the constant solicitation would end. That was not so as the doorbell rings, the telephone rings and the mail box is stuffed with appeals and always for what seem to be worthy causes. It is not easy to say "no" for fear the one we are turning down may be the most worthy of all. — FED UP

Polly's Problem

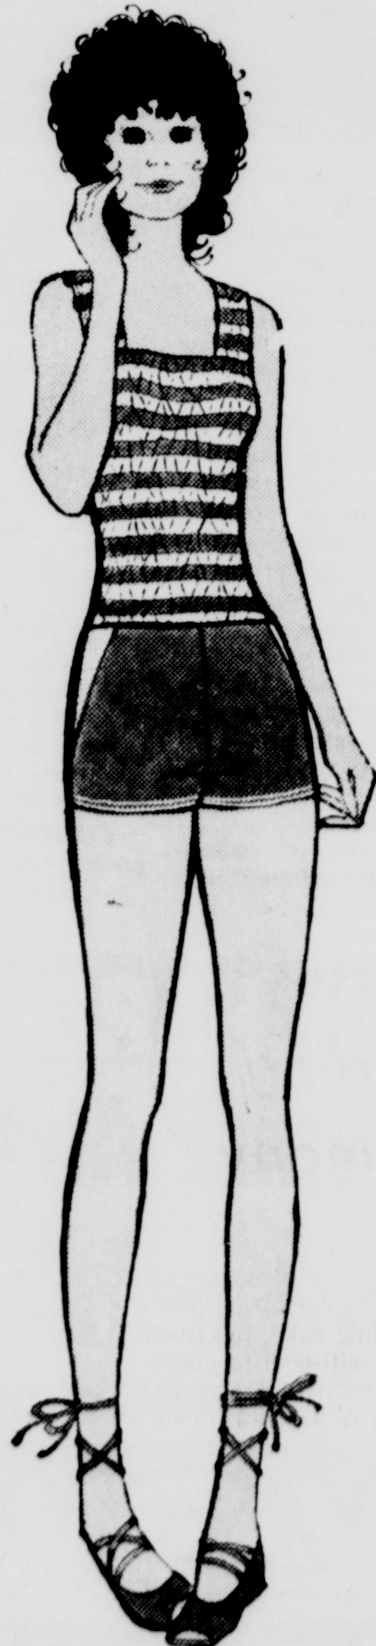

DEAR POLLY — Please tell me how to remove fruit stains (peaches in particular) from the wood top on my dishwasher. I have tried everything I can think of so hope one of the readers can come to my rescue. — MRS. L. A. S.

DEAR POLLY — Sharon can make a Naugahyde pad for her high chair just as she would make any other chair pad but she should use a heavy duty needle and longer stitches. If the pad is too thin an old bath towel folded makes good stuffing. (Polly's Note — My favorite stuffing for thin pads is a piece cut from an old quilted bed pad.) If this is not on hand foam rubber can also be used. Leave one side open so the pad cover can be turned and stuffed and then top stitched closed. Be sure to put ties at the corners so it will stay in place. — KAREN

DEAR GIRLS — Irma suggested using the shortest zigzag stitch if Karen's machine does this type of stitching. Also to first test on a scrap of the fabric. She also suggests using polyester-covered cotton thread. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — My sewing machine bobbins were so unhandy as each one had to be picked up and looked at separately to find a desired color. Now they are slipped on a soda straw and lay neatly behind the thread spools so I can see at a glance what colors I have. — MRS. L. S. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Island of Barbados Faces Unique Worry With Almost Complete Literacy

Youthful Enterprise

Tourists exploring the rocks at the windswept North Point of Barbados could well encounter a native tourist enterprise such as these two young boys ready to sell their strings of beads. Tourism is Barbados' fastest growing economic asset, and it offers chances of employment otherwise hard to find. Jobs for youths leaving school are particularly scarce. (AP)

Literacy has been an asset in another island program—birth control. A poster on a bus warns: "Accidents can happen. Let the Family Planning Association check your brakes." The analogy is not apparently effective.

The birth rate has declined over the past 10 years, from nearly 35 births for every 1,000 citizens in 1960, to about 25 per 1,000 in 1970.

But the population is still growing, with the death rate remaining steady.

Barbados' problems, like those of most developing nations, have been complicated by a "brain drain," with students leaving the island to complete their higher education in the United States and England—as have the two children of Prime Minister Errol W. Barrow. Others look for jobs off the island.

As on most islands in the Caribbean, the American influence is strong. The Barbados Hilton and Holiday Inn are recent additions and sunbathers have only to walk a few yards from one of the most popular beaches to lunch on Kentucky Fried Chicken offered in the familiar red and white cardboard box.

Yet while the American presence is being felt, the orientation is still very much British.

Cars drive on the left side of the road, the Anglican church was the foundation for the education system, tea is served at 4 p.m., cricket is the sport, and tourist booklets point proudly to the statue of Nelson in Trafalgar Square at the heart of Bridgetown.

The American and British influence goes deeper than hotels, statues and tea.

While blacks, who make up nearly 90 per cent of the population, are moving into lower and middle level management positions—most bank tellers, for example, are black—and blacks they can wait on tables or tend bar for the tourists. In 1970 13,000 persons were employed in tourist-related fields.

While the high literacy rate and the upgrading of skills that has accompanied it have contributed to the problems of finding workers for certain low skill jobs, they also have helped industry fill other positions.

"The mere fact of being able to read and write doesn't in itself create job opportunities, but we have benefitted from being a literate society," said Philip Greaves, the minister of housing, lands, labor and national insurance. The benefits, he said, were in the reduced training time it takes to teach a worker who can read and comprehend instructions telling him how to operate a machine.

The jobs they can be trained for are primarily in light industry. Barbados has about 80 small factories—light aluminum products, umbrellas, clothing and biscuits, to name a few which have been recently established.

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — Ralph Maughan, a 45-year-old cabbie, was driving down a narrow road bordered by fields of 2-foot stalks of sugarcane and saw a group of older persons cutting cane and a group of youngsters in neat school uniforms returning from classes.

"Kids today have all the changes, and it's good that way," he said.

The two groups—the children and the farm workers—represent much that is Barbadian society, and what Maughan saw was a sketch of the past and future of the 166-square-mile island nation in the Caribbean, about 250 miles north of Venezuela.

Throw in some tourists and light industry and the picture would be nearly complete.

However, with its industry, tourism, and educational systems growing at the same time—and at varying paces—monkeywrenches are popping up in the machinery. Ironically, the main monkeywrench is the literacy rate, frequently considered a measure of development in a young nation.

In Barbados, with 250,000 people one of the most densely populated nations in the world, 98 per cent of the residents are literate. More than a quarter of the population are students and a fourth of the national budget goes to education.

The island's free school system has produced a large group of persons prepared and educated for work—but the work isn't available. Unemployment is at least at 10 per cent.

Some youths who cannot find jobs continue their education and learn the hotel trades so

Reverses Wedding Ceremony

BOLTON, Mass. (AP) — The occasion was accented with all the traditional extras—a three-tiered wedding cake, inscribed matchbooks, gift-bearing guests and a little graffiti on the car.

But David W. Durrant's celebration was far from traditional—ask the 60 friends he invited to a "wedding in reverse" to celebrate his divorce.

The wedding cake was topped with black icing and a tiny plastic groom on top, but without a bride.

Four guests arrived in a stripped down antique car with "Just Divorced" painted on the side.

On the back of the car, where the trunk used to be, was a large suitcase labeled "Divorce Case."

The gifts were divorce specialties—a "his" towel without a mate, a single frying pan and a lone egg, and a single tea cup.

Durrant and his wife were married in their native England seven years ago but had been separated about two years before the divorce came through.

"It's a celebration of my freedom," the 29-year-old interior designer said.

Where Tropical Breezes Blow

Open to the steady pressure of Caribbean winds, vegetation on the tiny, generally flat island of Barbados bends to their prevailing direction. The 166-square-mile island lies about 250 miles north of Venezuela. It's still primarily agricultural, but tourism and light industry are increasingly important economic factors. (AP) are predominant in nearly all government positions, including those at the top, the leading manufacturers and investors are white and frequently foreign.

The owners of the sprawling sugar plantations are white, and the owners of the major hotels are white.

But race relations generally have been smooth here, and there have been no major disturbances since riots broke out in 1937.

According to Robert Best, the managing editor of the island's only daily newspaper, the Advocate News, a national statute prohibits anyone from advocating separation of the races or racial discrimination and this has hampered the cause of black power.

Barbados has other problems similar to those of undeveloped and developed countries alike, such as a housing shortage and high prices. Plus its own unique one: trying to match an educated population with the jobs and skills that are needed by society.

Only McGovern Might Believe 1972's Political Script

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

As political theater, nobody would have believed the Democratic presidential nomination campaign of 1972—nobody except Sen. George McGovern who wrote his own script.

The last act hasn't been played yet. McGovern will be hard to stop for the nomination to seek the White House, but there almost surely will be those who try.

Nonetheless, if anything was more obvious six months ago than that Sen. Edmund S. Muskie would be the nominee, it was that McGovern didn't have a chance.

He was the outsider. He was nowhere in the public opinion polls. The party leaders were signing up with his rivals.

Today, it is Muskie who is nowhere.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey isn't much better off, although he is not disheartened, is going to stay with it and "get this nomination."

The odds against that went up early today when McGovern won the California presidential primary, the big one with its 271 delegate votes at the Democratic convention in Miami Beach.

He won in New Mexico, too, although narrowly, over Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama. He captured a solid majority of the 109-vote New Jersey convention delegation. And he won

"I can't believe we've won the whole thing," McGovern told his cheering supporters at a victory rally in Hollywood.

Tuesday's primaries pushed his count of delegate commitments to 904½. No one else is even close, and there are more to come. His managers hope to gain at least 200 delegates in the New York primary two weeks away, more still in convention states.

No candidate but McGovern now has a chance of winning nomination on the first convention ballot.

Even some of his critics, led by Southern governors who fear a ticket led by the South Dakota liberal would drag down the party in the fall, acknowledge it is may be too late to stop him.

One reason is that the Democratic establishment didn't make any real effort to stop McGovern until late in the primary season, assuming it wouldn't be necessary.

So, virtually unnoticed, McGovern and his men, many of them seasoned in the campaign of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, put together state by state a political organization that far surpassed any other.

McGovern's California margin was not the massive landslide forecast in public opinion polls. With 59 per cent of the precincts counted, he led Humphrey by 10 per cent. But it was a convincing win, it was more than enough in a winner-take-all state, and but for the opinion survey that forecast a 20 per cent edge.

As it was, the margin left Humphrey room to keep going in his quest for a second nomination. It remained to be seen whether the California verdict would impress delegates now uncommitted, or aligned with Muskie, to switch to McGovern.

There was irony in the question of how big a win McGovern needed, for the same problem beset Muskie at the beginning of the primary season, when he said a phantom opponent of landslide expectations had been raised against him in New Hampshire.

In turn, Muskie and Humphrey made what turned out to be the same mistake. They relied on national reputations, old line Democratic organizations, party leaders, office holders and organized labor to deliver them in the presidential primaries.

McGovern put together his own organizations. New, usually young faces managed his state campaigns. That wasn't always by choice; often, nobody else was available to help a candidate ranked near the bottom in the national polls.

In Massachusetts, for example, a McGovern organizer tried to sign on some big-name Democrats for his convention slate. "The good guys already were committed to Muskie," he complained.

None of those good guys is going to vote at the national convention, McGovern entries, most of them virtually unknown, swept a primary where Muskie once ranked as the towering favorite.

Almost every Tuesday, Democrats were voting somewhere, and a massive force of door-to-door volunteers was at work for McGovern.

In California, the candidate claimed his canvassers had reached 80 per cent of the state's 5.1 million Democrats. No candidate had even attempted such an undertaking before.

While McGovern and his canvassers concentrated on the primaries, his organization handled the states that chose delegates by convention. There are more to come.

They paid attention as well to the old fashioned amenities of the politician. They touched base with state party leaders who in the early days were usually disinterested if not hostile.

They coddled delegates. They still are, with personalized letters signed by the candidate, with offers of assistance in Miami Beach and with copies of a McGovern biography.

McGovern, who briefly entered presidential competition four years ago as a symbolic candidate and heir to the support left by the assassinated Robert F. Kennedy, started this one early.

He announced he was running 18 months ago, saying he needed an early start to catch up with the better-known Democrats who led the polls. His chances were stalling at about the level of his standing in those polls: just far enough above zero to keep him on the boards.

Richmond Reversal Should Ease Busing Pressure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reversal of the Richmond school-busing case by the U.S. Court of Appeals is expected to ease the pressure on Congress for enactment of court-curbing legislation aimed at halting massive busing.

It also boosts chances for House passage Thursday of antibusing amendments that are under attack from Southerners as being too weak to stop the extensive busing called for in the Richmond plan.

Of Tuesday's court decision, Rep. Albert Quie, R-Minn., a chief sponsor of the $21.3-billion education bill to which the busing amendments are attached, said: "It couldn't have come at a better time. This will really help."

The 4th Circuit Court of Appeals held that Dist. Court Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr. had no authority to order consolidation of Richmond's 64-per-cent black schools and those in adjoining Henrico and Chesterfield counties, where 90 per cent of the pupils are white.

Merhige's order would have created a single 700-square-mile school district in which 78,000 of the 104,000 pupils would have been bused. The order was a key factor in stirring antibusing fervor in Congress.

The appellate court, in a 5-1 decision, said it could find no invidious discrimination in the way Richmond public schools are operated.

Without such a finding, the court said, a judge cannot compel a state "to restructure its internal government" as a means of achieving racial balance.

The chairman of the Richmond School Board, which filed the suit leading to Merhige's consolidation order last Jan. 10, said Tuesday's ruling will be appealed to the Supreme Court.

The Justice Department and officials in Henrico and Chesterfield counties hailed the appellate court's decision. In the view of Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, and Rep. William M. McCulloch, the senior Republican member, the circuit court ruling should quiet the clamor in Congress for a constitutional amendment prohibiting busing and for permanent curbs on court-ordered busing requested by President Nixon.

The 4th Circuit Court ruling, if upheld by the Supreme Court, would appear to block any desegregation plan that requires moving children across school district or city boundaries. In Detroit, U.S. Dist. Court Judge Stephen J. Roth held that such a plan was the only way the constitutional rights of black pupils could be upheld. Roth is still working on a final plan but the Supreme Court already has been asked to review his findings.

and with the people," Frisbie said.

He said supporters of former Gov. John Anderson Jr., of De Soto and Lt. Gov. Reynolds Shultz, Lawrence, both of whom have announced for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, had advised him not to run, but said: "I have been encouraged by many friends — both Republicans and Democrats — in every county in the state."

Announces Candidacy

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Farm Bureau state president Ray E. Frisbie, 61, made it official Tuesday. He announced as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of Kansas.

Frisbie, traveling in a Farm Bureau airplane, made stops in six cities, Topeka, Olathe, Pittsburg, Wichita, Salina and Hays, to announce he had decided to seek his first political office.

He said he will resign next week as Farm Bureau president, an office he has held for six years, and will also resign from the American Farm Bureau's national board.

Frisbie has been living in Manhattan. He is a native of Rawlins County, Kan., and operates, with his sons, a large livestock and grain farm near McDonald in the northwest corner of the state.

Frisbie is a former president of the Kansas Livestock Association and a former member of the Kansas Wheat Commission.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Voters in North Kansas City, a suburb at the north edge of the Missouri River, have approved liquor by the drink.

The vote in the special election Tuesday was 833 in favor and 517 against.

Advisory Committee Openness Is Sought

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has moved to open proliferating federal advisory committees to greater public scrutiny, duplicating proposals rolling rapidly toward passage in Congress.

While the White House issued a new executive order on the subject Tuesday, a top official of the President's Office of Management and Budget testified before a congressional subcommittee that control of advisory panels "is a management matter and can better be handled by executive action than by statute."

Legislation passed by the House last month and awaiting action by the Senate, OMB Assistant Director Frank C. Carlucci said, "would place a heavy operating responsibility on OMB and require a substantial addition of staff to the executive office of the President."

He said federal agency chiefs should have the job. Carlucci, testifying before a House Government Information subcommittee hearing on governmental secrecy policies, said the President's order signed Monday "provides that all meetings of advisory committees shall be announced in advance, shall be open to public observation, and that the public shall have access to the records of their proceedings."

Nixon's order involves hundreds of committees and covers several of the features contained in the House-passed legislation. The President's directive sets a central system for management and reporting of presidential advisory committees, panels of mainly non-governmental representatives, and committees of federal officials.

The House bill aims to control the creation, growth, public accountability and lifespan of influential panels advising federal officials, linking disclosure provisions of the Freedom of Information Act to the operations of these virtually hidden panels.

Sparkle Plenty Loses the Race

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Sparkle Plenty won't be running for Congress in November.

The Santa Fe waitress, whose candidacy livened the Democratic race for nomination to the U.S. House from District 1, was running fifth in a five-way race in Tuesday's primary.

The winner was Eugene Gallegos.

Miss Plenty, who adopted the name made famous by the character in the Dick Tracy comic strip, ran for Congress when a customer suggested that she do so.

With 70 per cent of the district's vote counted, she had 2,111 votes. Gallegos had 15,787.

Saline County Man Is Killed By Lightning

(Democrat-Capital Service)

MIAMI, Mo. — A Saline County man, Jack Bolsin, 29, was struck to death by lightning early Sunday morning near here.

According to Saline County Sheriff Henry Hoff, Bolsin had been fishing with his father and grandfather. At about 7:30 a.m. Sunday lightning struck a tree under which Bolsin was standing. The lightning apparently hit the tree just above Bolsin's head and grounded itself through his body, Hoff said.

The sheriff's department was summoned to the Joe Clemon's farm about three miles east of here, where Sheriff Hoff pronounced Bolsin dead at the scene.

Bolsin's body was taken to the Sweeney-Reser Funeral Home in Marshall where funeral services were to be held Wednesday.

'Angela Evening' Will Climax Tour

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — An "Evening with Angela" in New York's Madison Square Garden June 29 will culminate a nationwide tour the black militant begins Friday to thank all her supporters.

After the three-week tour, Miss Davis will leave for a six-week vacation in either the Soviet Union or Bulgaria, a spokesman said Tuesday.

Miss Davis was freed Sunday by an all-white jury of murder-kidnap-conspiracy charges in connection with an Aug. 7, 1970, escape attempt at the Marin County courthouse in which four persons died. She was accused of supplying the guns and helping plan the escape attempt.

Charelene Mitchell, executive director of the Angela Davis Defense Committee, said the 28-year-old black Communist will go to Los Angeles for several days, then travel to San Antonio, Tex., June 15; Chicago June 17; Detroit 18, then probably Memphis, Tenn., and her hometown of Birmingham, Ala., before winding up in New York.

A spokesman for Miss Davis, Stephanie Allan, said death threats Miss Davis has received since her acquittal were considered in setting up the tour. Because of them, she said, Miss Davis will travel with a security guard.

Miss Allan said Miss Davis would address the Madison Square Garden event and enter-

Patient Uses 'Talk Board'

By JOHN LUNDQUIST
Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — F. Hall Roe can't carry on a speaking conversation with you. But he gets along capably by flipping a hand around his talk board.

Roe, 56, has been crippled since birth with cerebral palsy. It hasn't chained his spirits, or determination.

A biography he once wrote poignantly spotlights the handicap.

"The first 13 years of my life, cerebral palsy as such was virtually unknown and my parents spent all their savings and more taking me from specialist to specialist, coast-to-coast and quick to quack, trying to find a cure, which is still non-existent."

Friends, as he caustically refers to them, begged his parents to institutionalize him, claiming an older brother and sister could not live normal lives with him around. He added:

"But my folks, especially my mother, was sure there was response and potential in me."

A resident at the Trevilla Nursing Home in suburban Robbinsdale, which specializes in treating the severely handicapped, Roe is confined to a wheel chair. He has little coordinated movement. He can't speak.

But he doesn't want a visitor to shout. "I can hear perfectly," states the legend atop his talk board.

It also asks, "Please repeat as I talk (this is how I talk by spelling out the words)."

There are about 10 sections lined off the masonite board, which has a light green silk-screen facing and black letters. The size of a luncheon tray, Roe sets it in his lap.

Originally, Roe had the alphabet clipped from large newspaper headlines and pasted on paper.

His 11th version contains a few handy phrases, 104 words, eight suffixes, the alphabet, numerals and days of the week. Also a few titles like "Mr.," "Miss," and "doctor," along with days of the week.

Common words are divided into three sections, for pronouns, active verbs and prepositions and conjunctions.

Roe was born in Salt Lake City, youngest of three children. He grew up in Chicago, where he recalls he was excluded from special classes three times because of his severe handicap. Still he finished elementary school in four years and high school in six and after correspondence courses with State University of Iowa got a certificate as a free lance journalist in 1956.

He calls it the equivalent of a bachelor's degree.

Probing Gangland Slaying

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — The FBI has entered the case of George Randolph "Randy" Farenthold, a wealthy rancher, sportsman and playboy found slain in gangland fashion on a seashore.

Farenthold, 32, was the stepson of state Rep. Frances Farenthold of Corpus Christi, who lost the Democratic primary runoff election for governor last Saturday.

His body washed ashore Tuesday two miles south of Port Aransas on the north side of Corpus Christi Bay. A 25-pound concrete block was chained around his neck and his hands were bound behind him.

Investigators said several marks were visible about the head but that they did not appear to be bullet wounds.

A Nueces County sheriff's office spokesman said Farenthold was last seen Saturday night. He said no motives or suspects have been established and Farenthold's car is still missing.

The FBI said it was entering the case because Farenthold was a prime witness in a federal case against four men charged with defrauding him of $100,000 and inducing him to travel across a state line in pursuance of a scheme.

Charges were brought against the four after Farenthold said he traveled to Houston with $100,000 to purchase federal bank notes and was robbed of the money by a gunman after he checked into a motel.

Moberly Granted $768,000 By HUD

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP) — The federal Housing and Urban Development agency has announced the award of a $768,000 grant to Moberly.

The grant is to be used in a neighborhood development program in the central section of the city.

Among other things the grant will fund engineering studies and the construction of about 71 rental housing units.

Panda Is Shy About Cameras

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the two most prominent Chinese natives currently on U.S. soil has shown strong public reluctance at being photographed with key congressional leaders, but no one along Embassy Row even winced.

In fact, following something of a chase outside the dignitaries' residence, the Asians drew more laughter than surprise in rebuffing House leaders Hale Boggs and Gerald Ford.

Boggs and Ford will leave for a nine-day trip to China June 23. To prepare, they went Tuesday to the National Zoo for a special hour-long session outside the cages of Hsing-Hsing and Ling-Ling, pandas lately of China and now living gifts to the United States.

"We also expect to be briefed by Henry Kissinger and President Nixon before we leave," Ford told newsmen as he and Boggs prepared to pose for pictures with the animals.

As the session began, Hsing-Hsing seemed as eager as the congressmen to get his picture taken.

The male panda maneuvered his fat, furry body through a narrow crack in the jammed gate to his cage after a 10-minute struggle. He stood on his head and wriggled his bottom like a hula dancer.

"He's doing what Chou En-lai and President Nixon did—opening the door a little more," Boggs remarked.

But Hsing-Hsing's enthusiasm waned. Boggs and Ford chased back and forth in front of his cage so photographers could frame the panda and the congressmen in a single shot.

Finally, he edged up to the glass separating him from spectators. But, as photographers prepared their cameras, he daintily lifted a leg and relieved himself in Boggs' direction.

Boggs of Louisiana, the House Democratic leader, and Ford of Michigan, the Republican leader, follow Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Republican leader Hugh Scott in making a visit to China in the wake of President Nixon's historic journey.

Synod President Assails Probation

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Dr. Jacob A. O. Preus, president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, Tuesday blasted the American Association of Theological Schools for placing Concordia Seminary on two years probation.

Dr. Preus said the association got into matters that were none of its business.

The president has been involved in a running dispute about how professors at the seminary should interpret scriptures. He said the main question in the case is whether certain professors have gone beyond the limits of Lutheran doctrine.

Dr. Preus said it appears to him the accreditation agency wants to see the church make "far reaching changes which will affect the total internal structure of our church."

Aversion Therapy

Mary Pat Murphy's cigarette puff in a therapy room at Schick Laboratories clinic, Seattle, doesn't give her much pleasure any more. In fact she gets a mild electric shock, administered by therapist Donna Holly through electrodes strapped to Mary Ann's wrist. It's part of a $150 program of treatment to cure smokers of their habit by use of aversion therapy — making smoking ugly and obnoxious. The table is littered with scores of half-smoked cigarettes, crumpled cigarette packages and burned matches. The stench is nauseating. I lit a cigarette and put it to my lips. Then I was zapped with electric current. This treatment is called aversion therapy. It is aimed at breaking the cigarette habit. The Northwest firm, Schick Laboratories, which operates the program says about 70 per cent of the 1,500 people who have gone through it have stopped smoking. That "cure rate," it says, is based on three-month follow-ups. I am one of the 1,500. The program is based on the premise that the smoker really wants to quit, since he's willing to pay the $150 treatment fee. After an initial interview, which eliminates about 7 per cent of the applicants, the smoker is prepared for his therapy. Each smoker is asked to record on a wrist counter the number of cigarettes smoked each day between the interview and the beginning of therapy.

Shocking Experience Is Effective Therapy

By MARY PAT MURPHY
Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — The room is stark, small and reeks of stale cigarette smoke.

Next to one wall is a table heaped with scores of half-smoked cigarettes, crumpled cigarette packages and burned matches. The stench is nauseating.

I lit a cigarette and put it to my lips.

Then I was zapped with electric current.

This treatment is called aversion therapy. It is aimed at breaking the cigarette habit.

The Northwest firm, Schick Laboratories, which operates the program says about 70 per cent of the 1,500 people who have gone through it have stopped smoking. That "cure rate," it says, is based on three-month follow-ups.

I am one of the 1,500.

The program is based on the premise that the smoker really wants to quit, since he's willing to pay the $150 treatment fee. After an initial interview, which eliminates about 7 per cent of the applicants, the smoker is prepared for his therapy.

Each smoker is asked to record on a wrist counter the number of cigarettes smoked each day between the interview and the beginning of therapy.

The counter is designed to make him conscious of the number of cigarettes he smokes and when he smokes them.

Before the treatments begin, the smokers are given the usual health scare talk and are told some of the social benefits that becoming a nonsmoker will bring.

Each person then is taken to an individual therapy room, which is carefully set up to present cigarette smoking as ugly and obnoxious.

The therapist hooks up the client to the "zap box" used to administer a mild electric shock, somewhat sharper than the jolt of static electricity one gets from scuffling across a carpet.

The would-be nonsmoker is told to light a cigarette and is jolted by the current flowing through electrodes strapped to his wrist.

Two cigarettes are smoked during each hour-long therapy session. The smoker is told to take 15 quick puffs on each without inhaling, and he's zapped with each puff as he picks up the cigarette, raises it to his mouth and puffs on it.

Under "quick puff" therapy, the smoker is told to smoke three cigarettes in 10 minutes, taking a drag and inhaling every six seconds. Zap.

The therapy sessions are designed to produce an aversion to the sight, smell and taste of cigarettes.

About two months after treatment it was difficult for me, once a pack-a-day-plus smoker, to even enter the therapy room.

Bob Hardwick, a local radio personality, says he could not force himself to touch some butts he found on the floor as he was cleaning his garage.

After five aversion sessions, the ex-smoker is asked to return for group therapy once a week for eight weeks.

Catch words and phrases and positive thinking are stressed through the entire program but are most evident at the group sessions. "Each ex-smoker is just one cigarette away from being a smoker," we were told.

Use of the "buddy system" is encouraged for overcoming urges to smoke. Each person is told to call his buddy or the clinic staff for help whenever his will power is slipping.

At the end of eight weeks, $25 of the original $150 is refunded if the client has attended the follow-up sessions. If he has gone back to smoking and additional therapy hasn't helped, $75 is refunded.

Those going through the program range from teen-agers to older people who have been told they have to quit smoking to survive.

People who have succeeded are lavish in their praise, and even those who don't quit or who start smoking again usually blame themselves rather than the program.

Gail Lockhart, a pretty 21-year-old, was told by a doctor she was developing emphysema. The next day she went to the Seattle clinic. Gale, who was unemployed, paid the $150 from the money she'd saved for her wedding this August.

"I don't think I could have quit without the clinic," she said.

One young housewife who went through the clinic successfully last May called recently asking for additional help. She said she still couldn't stand cigarettes but had started smoking two or three large cigars each day. She was put through more therapy to get rid of the cigar habit.

Scientist Studies Monkeys

By MARTIN KRUMING
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — There are bird watchers, girl watchers, weight watchers and China watchers. Jim Loy is a monkey watcher.

To do so he gets up before dawn, drives 20 minutes to the small fishing village of La Parguera on Puerto Rico's west coast and takes a five minute motor boat ride to a place called "monkey island."

Wearing a Navy blue baseball cap, an Army jungle fatigue jacket and hiking boots, he gathers the only equipment needed to watch the furry creatures—a pair of binoculars, pad and pencil.

Then from shortly after sunrise—before the temperatures reach into the 90s—until afternoon, the tall, anthropologist patiently watches monkeys.

"It takes a lot of patience. After a thorough day with the monkeys I feel much older," says Loy, 28, who works for the Caribbean Primate Research Center based near San Juan and affiliated with the University of Puerto Rico.

There are about 350 monkeys of three different varieties on the island. All but 13 are the rhesus type from India.

The 13 non-rhesus are patas monkeys from Zambia in eastern Africa and green monkeys from nearby St. Kitts whose relatives date back to the African slave trade in the 1700s.

Loy, a native of Knoxville, Tenn., is scientist in charge of the La Parguera colony.

"Monkey island" is two islands—Cueva and Guayacan—stretching over 180 acres of mangrove swamp, tall bush grass and cactus.

La Parguera first was stocked with monkeys (there are no monkeys on Puerto Rico) 11 years ago when a load of rhesus was shipped from India. Funded by a grant from the National Institute of Disease and Stroke in Bethesda, Md., the primate center is almost two years old. In addition to La Parguera, the center also includes Cayo Santiago, another "monkey island" of some 37 acres off Puerto Rico's eastern shore. It was started in 1938.

The only other monkey colony in the western hemisphere is on Barro Colorado in the Panama Canal zone, says Dr. C. H. Conaway, 48, director of the primate center who helped set it up in 1961.

But no records have been kept, he says, and all they have "is a bunch of monkeys with no background."

Accurate records for each monkey are kept at La Parguera including sex, birth and death rates, parents and grandparents and social ranking. For this reason each is tattooed with a black dye.

Rhesus monkeys were chosen for the colony because "the animals are free of tuberculosis and many virus diseases including measles," says Conaway.

No studies are being conducted regarding mental illness, cancer or other diseases but there are a number of experiments under way.

These include night observation of rhesus, responses of monkey troops to defective infants who have had their vision impaired, acts of aggression during the mating season and what factors regulate the mating season.

Farm Roundup

Hired Hand Employees Shows Small Increase

By DILLON GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says the hired farm work force increased slightly during 1971, interrupting a downward trend in progress since 1967.

It says a survey of workers 14 and older paid cash for doing some farm work in 1971 showed about 2.6 million persons were part of this hired labor force, up from 2.5 million the year before.

All of the gain was in the nonmigrant group. The number of migrant workers declined 12 per cent—falling from 196,000 in 1971 to 172,000.

The hired farm work force was young, median age 22; male, 73 per cent; white, 78 per cent and lived in nonfarm places most of the year, 73 per cent.

A department report says that considered as a whole, the group averaged $822 in cash wages from farm work—$11.60 a day for 76 days.

Almost three-fifths of the workers—1.2 million—weren't in the labor force most of the year. This group consisted mainly of students, about 1 million, and housewives. Their farm earnings for the year averaged $89, or $9.90 a day for 9 days of work, a department report says.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mink pelt production in the United States in 1971 totaled nearly 3.4 million pelts, down 24 per cent from 1970, the Agriculture Department reports.

Fifteen states accounted for Much of the data compiled at La Parguera and Cayo Santiago has been published in scientific journals. However, information on the recent experiments is not yet conclusive.

There are two other monkey watchers on La Parguera. One is Loy's wife, Kent, a teacher who observes the patas and green monkeys.

The other is Lee Drickamer, 25, a zoologist from Illinois working on a grant from the North Carolina Foundation of Mental Health Research.

Since monkeys are such close biological relatives to man, the results of experiments now under way have human implications. However, test results have not been concluded.

94 per cent of U.S. production with five major states producing 63 per cent of the total.

The production and percentage decrease from a year earlier in the five states were: Wisconsin 974,000 pelts, 27 per cent; Minnesota 459,000, 25 per cent; Utah 340,000, 14 per cent; Washington 195,000, 24 per cent and Ohio 169,000 pelts, 20 per cent.

By color class, the number of pelts as a per cent of total 1971 production was: standard, 36.3 per cent; pastel 31.3; pearl, 11.7; violet, 10.2; sapphire, 5.1; white, 1.5; gunmetal, 1.5; lavender-hope, 1.2; pale brown, 0.6; platinum, 0.4; and miscellaneous, 0.2 per cent.

Pollution Death Charges Dismissed

JACKSON, Mo. (AP) — Circuit Judge William Billings has dismissed charges that the Little River Drainage District of Southeast Missouri killed an estimated 25,000 fish by polluting drainage canals in Stoddard and New Madrid counties a year ago.

The judge said the district is a political subdivision of the state and is immune from criminal prosecution.

SPEED READING COURSE TO BEGIN IN SEDALIA AREA

Arrangements have been made to conduct a 21-hour course in speed reading. The course is open to anyone above the age of 13 and guarantees every graduate a reading speed over 1,000 words per minute and with at least 15 per cent increase in comprehension.

After the seven week program a person can read any average length book in less than an hour and understand it better. In addition to speed reading the course also emphasizes improved study techniques, better test taking skills, and increased concentration and retention abilities.

The course requires a person to attend one class per week on the evening of their choice for those who would like more information, without obligation to enroll, a series of FREE one-hour orientation lectures have been scheduled.

These meetings are free to the public and the course will be explained in complete detail including entrance requirements, classroom procedures, tuition, class schedule and location. You need to attend only one of the meetings whichever is most convenient for you. These free one-hour orientations will be held as follows: Wednesday, June 7, 7:30-8:30 p.m.; Thursday, June 8, 7:30-8:30 p.m.; Friday, June 9, 7:30-8:30 p.m.

A final meeting Monday, June 12, 7:30-8:30 p.m.

These meetings will be held at Holiday Inn, Sedalia, Mo. Persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent.

WORLD ALMANAC
FACTS

A typical planetarium projector for a large auditorium can project the images of nearly 9,000 stars against the reflective surface of a hemispherical dome. The first modern planetarium projector was designed and built in 1923 by Walter Bauersfeld of the Zeiss Optical Company. The World Almanac says.

WASHINGTON — The "little guy" can rebel until his pocketbook oozes venom, but the smart guys with the money will still manipulate him right to the bottom of his pauper's grave.

Rowan

All over the political landscape, including California, there is dramatic evidence that this "little guy" is fed up, that he is tired of carrying a disproportionate share of the nation's fiscal burdens.

But what is he offered by way of tax reforms? The Nixon administration tells him that reforms are unnecessary, and that if they come, things like the deduction for interest on mortgages and the deduction for property taxes will be in jeopardy.

Then along comes Rep. Wilbur Mills, the powerful Arkansas Democrat who chairs the House Ways and Means Committee, to talk about reviewing or wiping away 54 "tax loopholes" by 1975. Sure enough, among the 54 are those interests on mortgages and taxes on your family cottage.

Why do the politicians engage in such folderol? Are they trying to say to the average American, "If I can't have my oil depletion allowance and my fast real estate depreciation, you can't have your deductions on your residence?"

It is a travesty of tax justice to talk about these things in the same breath. Of the 63.4 million occupied housing units in this country, almost half (31.9 million) are owner-occupied. That means that these home owners took deductions on property taxes in 1971 that cost the Treasury $2.9 billion, and they deducted interest on mortgages that cost the government $2.8 billion in revenue.

But these are not "loopholes." They are sane provisions of the tax laws that enable almost half this nation's population to own their own homes — provisions, by the way, that keep the housing industry alive and prosperous.

Every politician in the White House and on the Hill knows that there will be no repeal of provisions allowing mortgage interest and property tax deductions. So one must assume that all talk about it adds up to an effort to shake up the average homeowner to the point that he becomes a sort of refrigerator, cooling down the clamor for tax reforms.

But if you talk to tax experts on the House Ways and Means Committee, or the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, you become convinced that tax reform is pitifully overdue.

I asked one expert on the Hill to "wipe away the smokescreens about deductions that are fair and legitimate and available to the mass of Americans," like mortgage deductions, and list a few of what he regarded as truly unfair tax abuses.

First he cited the fact that capital gains go untaxed if held until death. He pointed out, for example, that he personally had bought stock at 55 cents a share that is now listed on the New York Exchange at $38 a share.

"If I die, no tax is paid on that huge capital gain," he said. "But Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) has proposed a law that would tax such gains."

I asked him about real estate loopholes, said to be among the very worst.

"Accelerated depreciation on real estate is abused outrageously," he said. "Real estate operators put virtually no money in, but they depreciate the entire value of the building rather than the money they have invested. They deduct the interest on their loans. They pretty much build vast buildings at Uncle Sam's expense."

He pointed out that the new proposal by Mills would repeal "fast depreciation," limiting depreciation to the equity, or the money actually put up, rather than the value of the building.

That is a real tax reform that would shake up a lot of people.

Asked if real estate deductions were really more abusive or unjustifiable than those in the oil industry, this tax expert said, "Absolutely not."

Once a real estate operator has depreciated the value of a building, he explained, that is that. But the oil operators write off almost 100 per cent of their investment as a current deduction of "intangible drilling expenses." Then, he added, they take percentage depletions year after year on income. "If they hit a rich well, they may have recovered their investment 20 times over, but they go on and on taking their percentage depletion. That is a lot juicier loophole than real estate depreciation," he said.

This expert characterized oil deals as "the No. 1 reason why people with large incomes pay no taxes."

There are members of Congress who want to stop fiddling with the little guy, threatening to take away the few deductions he enjoys, and really go after some of the more glaring advantages that accrue to the affluent.

Rep. James Corman (D-Calif.) proposes, for example, that the laws be changed so that no one can purchase a fancy beach condominium as a tax shelter. He wants the law changed so that no expenses can be deducted for conventions held outside the United States — a change that would halt such practices as the American Bar Association holding a tax-deductible conclave in London.

In short, Corman wants some positive additions to our tax laws to equalize the burdens somewhat. Mills just wants to wipe out bits of the old, admittedly unjust, code.

If the "little guy" forces either of these reforms to come about, this observer will be most surprised.

Sedalia's Tradition Of Voter Apathy

As the election year heats up, so does interest in registering as many voters in Sedalia as possible.

The Sedalia-Pettis County League of Women Voters has been active in this regard, aiming especially at registering the new crop of 18 to 20-year-olds who may now cast ballots, thanks to the 26th Amendment. The League's petition drive to put a proposal on the ballot for county-wide voter registration, if successful in November, will also cause county voters to be more diligent in exercising their right to vote.

Another timely League service is distribution this week of a "Know Your Local Government" handbook. The pamphlet was prepared by the League, and is filled with data and information of interest to local voters.

Much remains to be done, however, since Sedalia has a longstanding tradition of voter apathy. And the League of Women Voters can't do it all.

According to the Pettis County clerk, there were 12,266 registered voters in Sedalia at last count. Yet in the 1970 city election, only 6,611 voted, or slightly more than 50 per cent of those eligible.

This is a shameful record. In effect, nearly one of every two Sedalians, by not voting, forfeits his right to participate in the democratic process. In the words of Grover Cleveland, "...every voter, as surely as a chief magistrate, exercises a public trust."

Yes, there is a need to encourage our young, newly-enfranchised voters to do their duty. But more than that, someone should work just as hard on their parents, so they might set a better example of responsible citizenship.

Merry-Go-Round

FBI Stalks Family Of House Member

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The FBI has sworn it doesn't investigate congressmen, but it has spent an extraordinary amount of time stalking the family of one.

An indignant Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., learned last year that the FBI had been checking on his 22-year-old daughter, Jacqueline. What he doesn't know is that the FBI is also spying on his 25-year-old son, Michael.

Reuss is a solid sort, who devotes himself largely to banking legislation. He was once a director of a bank, but he isn't likely to rob one.

His wife, Margaret, occupies her spare time teaching economics at Washington's Federal City College. The four children attended prestigious private schools. All are eminently respectable and unlikely criminals.

True, Reuss is considered a bit of a radical in banking circles because of his liberal Democratic views. A decorated infantry officer during World War II, he is also against war. His wife and children, too, are active in the peace movement.

This is what aroused the FBI's suspicions about the Reusses. The FBI, you see, has become political in recent years, and antiwar activity is against the FBI's ideology. The G-men, therefore, literally spend more time investigating peace activists than Mafia gangsters.

The darkest charge the FBI could make against Mike Reuss was that he had been "a friend of Robert Avakian." The FBI dossier on Reuss contains a confidential note that Avakian "has been publicly identified as a member of the Central Committee of the Bay Area RU (Revolutionary Union)."

This group is identified by an FBI "source" as a "revolutionary, Marxist-Leninist organization ideologically oriented toward Communist China." The dossier doesn't charge that young Reuss is affiliated with the group but merely that he knows someone who is.

The surveillance reports on Reuss also assert ominously that, in July 1969, he lived in Lafayette, Calif., at "the residence of Mark Silverman." It turns out that Silverman is a "Stanford University student spokesman" who is opposed to the draft.

Reuss spent part of 1969 living with his brother, Christopher, in Richmond, Calif. The G-men found this out, according to the hush-hush reports, "through the use of a suitable pretext call."

Special Agent Paul W. Shields also discovered "that as of March 28, 1967, Michael Reuss was a VISTA worker managing a quilt factory in Jackson, Kentucky."

Several pages in the Reuss dossier are devoted to newspaper accounts of the young man's arrest during a civil rights demonstration at West Point, Miss., on August 6, 1965. Because a highway patrolman suffered a heart attack during the confrontation, some of the demonstrators, including Reuss, were charged with manslaughter. He was later cleared of any blame.

The congressman's son and daughter are typical of the "desperados" who now seem to occupy most of the FBI's attention.

McGovern vs. O'Brien — If Sen. George McGovern wins the Democratic presidential nomination, Democratic National Chairman Larry O'Brien will be fired. This is the word from the McGovern camp. McGovern will also divorce his campaign organization from the old guard Democratic National Committee. He has already incorporated his McGovern For President organization as a separate entity. His plan is not only to remove it from the regular party machinery but also to avoid the kind of law suits that were filed individually against Eugene McCarthy and the late Robert Kennedy's estate to collect 1968 campaign debts. By forming a corporation, McGovern can avoid personal responsibility. He intends to work with the party regulars, however, in the presidential campaign.

Dirty Dozen — Environmental Action, a conservation group, has drawn up its list of Congress "Dirty Dozen" — the 12 House members from marginal districts "who do the most to help pollute the environment." The choice is based on the congressman's stands on such issues as the SST, clean water bills, the Archatka atomic blast and even family planning. In 1970, Environmental Action claims it helped eliminate seven of that year's "Dirty Dozen" at the polls. This year, the "Dirty Dozen" are Reps. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo.; Walter Baring, D-Nev.; Earle Cabell, D-Tex.; Charles Chamberlain, R-Mich.; James Delaney, D-N.Y.; Samuel Devine, R-Ohio; Earl Landgre, R-Ind.; Sherman Lloyd, R-Utah; Peter Peyser, R-N.Y.; John Rooney, D-N.Y.; Vernon Thomson, R-Wis.; and Rober Zion, R-Ind.

Vietnam Settlement? — President Nixon has expressed new optimism about the possibility of settling the Vietnam war. In his private conversations, he has cited these points: 1. North Vietnam cannot continue its offensive in the South and replace the supplies destroyed by American bombs without a new round of Soviet equipment. This would require such a huge investment that Soviet leaders may be hesitant. 2. The offensive shows signs of bogging down in the face of South Vietnam resistance and monsoon weather. 3. General Nguyen Giap, the North Vietnamese commander, is a cautious tactician and is not likely to risk his army in a reckless offensive. 4. If the military drive should stall, Hanoi would have little to lose by negotiating and perhaps even declaring a cease-fire.

Misidentified

On his official inaugural medals, Franklin D. Roosevelt is identified as the 31st U.S. president. Some people hold, and some do not, that since Grover Cleveland was both the 22nd and 24th president, Roosevelt actually was the 32nd, which is how The World Almanac designates him.

Close Together

At its most western point, the Alaskan mainland is only 51 miles from Russia. Alaska's Little Diomed Island, in the Bering Strait, is about 2½ miles from Russia's Big Diomed Island. No other part of North America lies so close to Asia.

Cromley

Nixon adviser Henry Kissinger has another thesis, based on historical observation — that sometimes a momentum once lost can never be regained.

This is true in war, in national expansion, sometimes in economic and scientific growth. It is also true, Kissinger believes, in an arms race of the magnitude of this one.

Kissinger therefore believes that once the Soviet arms build-up momentum is halted, or slowed, even momentarily, and even if only in numbers, then important changes can take place in Russia. Counter pressures will build up.

Rival claimants, other than the military, will be able to more forcefully demand a larger share of the rubles, raw materials and technicians, pressures similar to those which have been building up in the United States these past few years.

The Soviet Union's Brezhnev is betting, of course, that this agreement will bring the technical aid which will enable the Soviet scientists to catch up with their American rivals, both in military technology and in the application of computers and other advanced techniques to the management of industry and to the development of the Soviet Union's vast underdeveloped areas.

Internationally, Brezhnev is betting that the underdeveloped countries will be so impressed by the numerical superiority allocated the Soviet Union in intercontinental missiles and ballistic missile submarines that these lands will be convinced that Russia is the world's number one military nation and most powerful country — and that communism is therefore the wave of the future.

This psychology of ultimate victory is a major strategy of the Kremlin in its drive for power and influence at home and abroad.

Soviet Communist theory holds that peoples usually will turn for aid and support to that nation which is the acknowledged strongest or which seems to be.

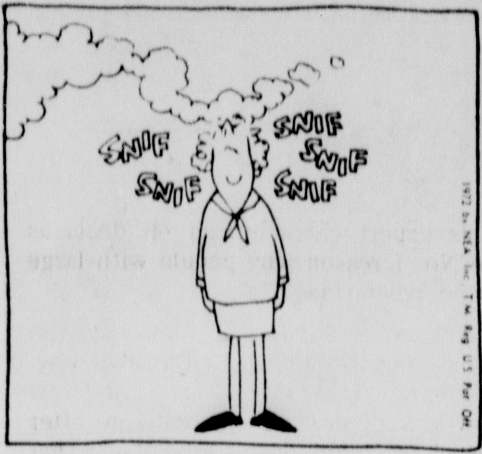

That is, the Russians, like the North Vietnamese and Chinese, are seeking a psychological victory, which in Marxist strategy is the basis for political victory.

Nixon came to Moscow; Brezhnev didn't come to Washington. On paper Russia has more ICBMs or is allowed more, and is allowed more missile submarines.

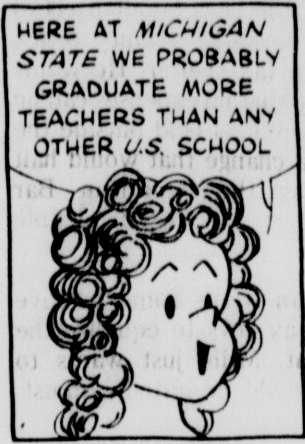

We have seen this desire for psychological victory elsewhere of late. It is for this reason that North Vietnam thus far has not been satisfied with a chance to control South Vietnam. Hanoi wants to psychologically publicly humiliate the United States and rub Nixon's nose in the mud and do the same for President Thieu's government in South Vietnam.

This is an essential part of victory. It would not prove that North Vietnam was stronger than the United States. But psychologically, by Marxist theory, it would advance the cause more than simple victory. It would make the people in the South more malleable and would establish the position of Hanoi in Southeast Asia and in the Communist and Third Worlds.

Here is another Eddy Kantar hand from the American Contract Bridge League Bulletin.

South arrives at a poor six-spade contract but you can't fault the bidding. There is tremendous duplication of values.

West gets off to what turns out to be a very friendly opening lead and it is up to South to plan his play.

Naturally, he ruffs in dummy. Then he considers his next play. One line is to play three rounds of hearts and hope to be able to ruff the third one successfully.

A slightly better line is to cash the ace of trumps first. You just might drop a singleton king. If you don't you still play three rounds of hearts, ruffing the third one.

Both these plays fail because West holds just two hearts and will overruff the third lead and cash his ace of diamonds.

The other line of play is to cash just two hearts and then lead dummy's singleton diamond.

This play works. West wins the diamond and can't lead anything to keep South from gaining the lead in order to take a trump finesse.

This play is also superior. West needs the king of spades for his vulnerable opening. Thus, this play will work as long as hearts break 3-2 and as long as West does hold that spade king.

It fails miserably if West opened some sort of fancy bid with just nine high-card points but that is the sort of chance a good player has to take.

A—Bid four hearts. Your hand is worth 10 points in support of hearts and your partner has a 16-18-point hand. Even if he has cheated a point, there will still be a fair chance for game.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two hearts, your partner has rebid two diamonds to deny holding a four-card major suit. What do you do now?

Siebert Wastes Little Time With White Sox

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sonny Siebert doesn't like to think about what he's doing on the mound—and he didn't give the Chicago White Sox much time to think about it, either.

Boston's big right-hander whizzed past Chicago's heavy-hitting line-up Tuesday night in less than two hours—one minute less, to be precise—spinning a four-hitter in the Red Sox' 2-0 victory.

In the rest of the American league, Minnesota edged Baltimore 5-4 in 15 innings, Texas tripped the New York Yankees 6-3, Oakland beat Cleveland 7-2, Kansas City defeated Milwaukee 4-2 and Detroit beat California 8-6 in the first game of a twinned doubleheader before the Angels won the second game 4-0.

In the National League, Houston beat Philadelphia 4-3, Los Angeles blanked the Chicago Cubs 5-0, the New York Mets edged Cincinnati 3-2, St. Louis turned back San Francisco 5-3, Atlanta slipped by Montreal 3-2 and, for the second straight night, Pittsburgh's game at San Diego was rained out.

"I started working faster last year," said Siebert, a 16-game winner in 1971 for the third time in eight major league seasons. "I'm more aggressive that way and the fielders play better ball."

"Also, I'm not doing too much thinking when I work fast. I'm not kidding," Sonny smiled, "but when I start thinking, I can get into trouble."

He had no trouble with the White Sox. His manager, Eddie Kasko, called it "his best game of the season."

Siebert and veteran knuckleballer Wilbur Wood dueled through five scoreless innings before singles by Doug Griffin and Tommy Harper and a double by Luis Aparicio produced Boston's two runs. It enabled Siebert to chalk up his fifth victory in seven decisions.

With just three outs to go in Baltimore, it appeared the Orioles were a sure bet to snap their four-game losing streak. But Jim Palmer, tossing a six-hitter and staked to a three-run lead, couldn't hold it as the Twins tied it 4-4 on Eric Soderholm's two-run homer and singles by Rick Dempsey, Steve Braun and Danny Thompson.

They won it in the 15th on Rod Carew's single, a walk and Steve Brye's single.

Don Mincher, pinch-hitter for winning pitcher Dick Bosman, capped Texas' three-run uprising in the sixth inning with a two-run single that led to the Yankees' downfall.

Bosman was working on a one-hitter when Rangers' Manager Ted Williams decided to make the switch. "I was surprised Ted pulled me when I felt as strong as I did," Bosman said.

"Mincher made him look like a genius. I felt good and had it really going," he added. "I've never been pulled on a one-hitter before."

The A's shoved across six runs in the final two innings to beat the Indians—but Vida Blue wasn't around to enjoy the gift. He left in the sixth inning trailing by a run.

Joe Rudi doubled home one run and Sal Bando singled for another in the eighth, then Reggie Jackson's three-run homer, his 12th of the year, capped Oakland's four-run eighth.

Kansas City, held to just two hits—including Paul Schaaf's run-scoring triple—in the first five innings, woke up to beat left-hander Ken Brett in the sixth on Lou Piniella's two-run single which followed hits by Fred Patek and Amos Otis.

Detroit staked Mickey Lolich to a six-run lead after just two innings of the opening game but the Tigers' left-hander had to be bailed out by reliever Chuck Seelbach before recording his ninth victory.

Ed Brinkman clouted a three-run home, and Aurelio Rodriguez added a two-run shot but Lolich was reached for nine hits—including homers by Andy Kosco, Leroy Stanton and Bob Oliver—before departing in the eighth inning.

In the second game, the Angels' Clyde Wright tossed a four-hitter to raise his record to 5-2. California gave him everything he needed with a three-run fourth, two of them coming on Leo Cardenas' double.

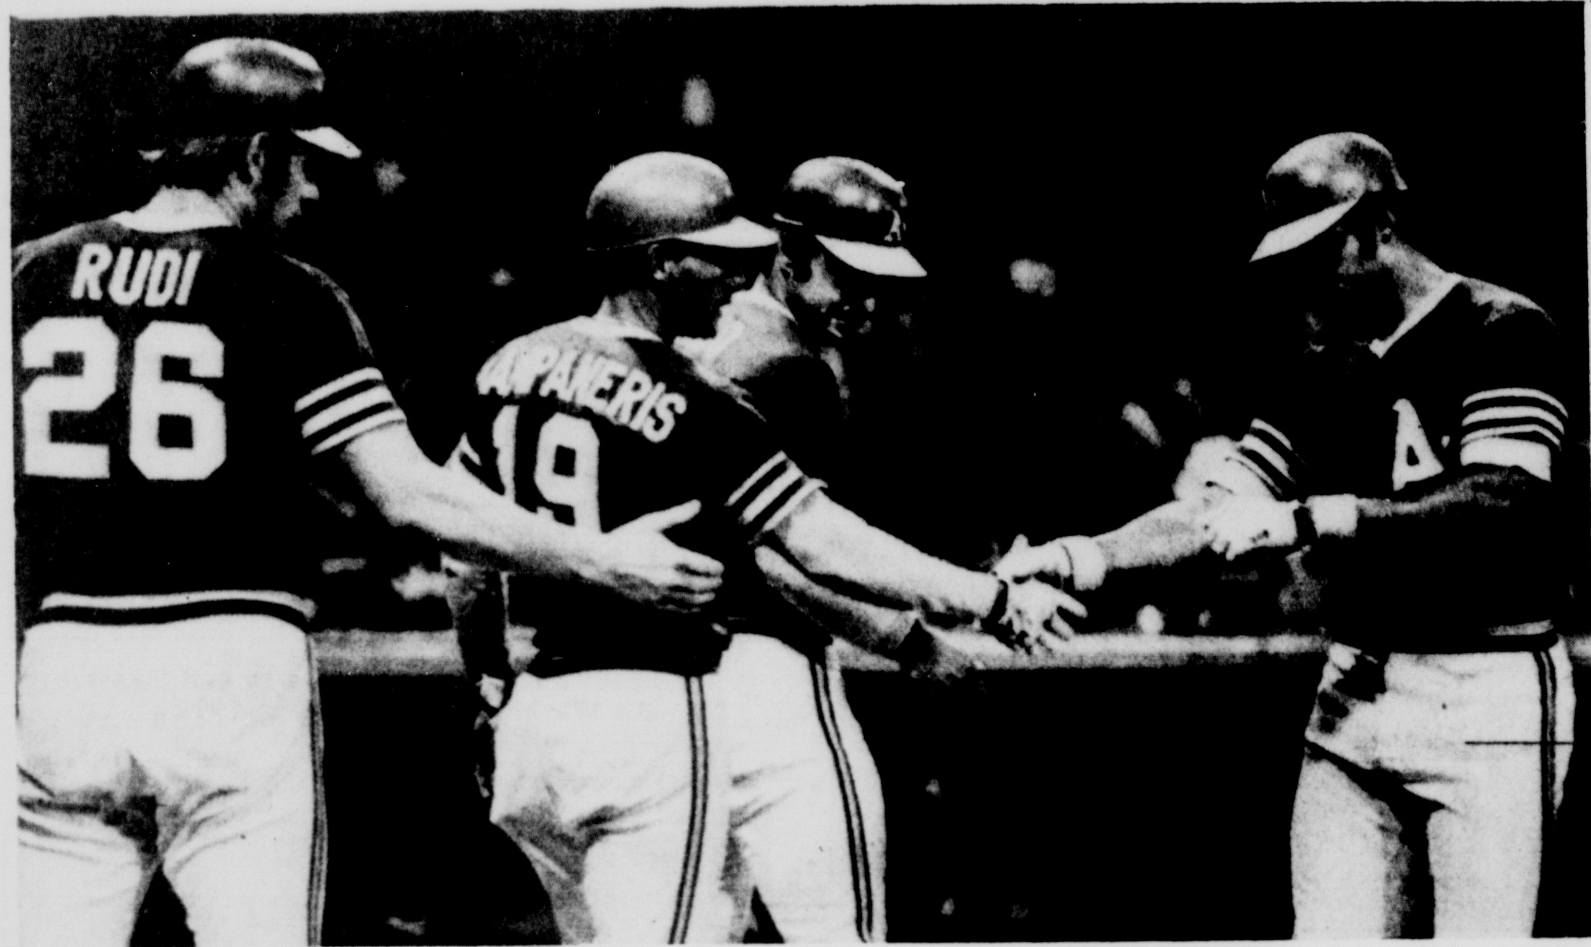

Await Decision

Race driver Jerry Grant, left, and builder-owner Dan Gurney, talk after their hearing with the United States Auto Club Tuesday in Indianapolis concerning Gurney's appeal of USAC's decision to drop Grant from second to 12th in the final results of the Indianapolis 500. The incident surrounding USAC's initial decision was that Grant took on fuel late in the May 27 race from Gurney team member Bobby Unser's fuel tank. Gurney did not deny the charge, but is appealing the case because he feels the penalty is too severe. A decision on the appeal was expected late Wednesday or Thursday.

Crowning Blow

Joe Rudi (26), Bert Campaneris (19) and Sal Bando, second from right, reach out to shake hands with Oakland teammate Reggie Jackson after he smacked a three-run ninth inning homer that scored Rudi and Campaneris ahead of Jackson in Tuesday night's game with the Cleveland Indians in Cleveland. The A's rolled for six runs in the last two innings and posted a 7-2 victory. (UPI)

Los Angeles Picks First In Today's Second Phase

NEW YORK (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers stepped into the batter's box today to grab off the No. 1 pick in the second phase of baseball's free agent draft after the San Diego Padres gave unknown Dave Roberts his first push toward a major league career.

Roberts, a junior third baseman at the University of Oregon, was made the No. 1 pick in the regular phase as the draft began Tuesday, becoming only the second collegian in the 15-year history of the selection process to be tabbed a No. 1 choice.

The other collegian selected No. 1 was outfielder Rick Monday, drafted out of Arizona State by the Oakland A's in 1965 and now a regular with the Chicago Cubs.

Roberts offers impressive credentials in his bid for a major league berth, including a .410 batting average at Oregon and a homer and two singles in five at-bats in an exhibition game against the Philadelphia Phillies' Eugene, Ore., farm club.

Despite the fact he's a junior, he is ready to begin starting up the ladder.

The Padres announced Tuesday night that they had signed Roberts at his home in Corvallis, Ore. Terms of the contract were not announced.

The Padres said Roberts would be in a San Diego uniform for their two-night doubleheader at home against the Pittsburgh Pirates Wednesday.

Any players drafted in the regular phase who do not sign go back into the pool and can be drafted again the following year. It is players previously drafted who did not sign who will be up for grabs in today's secondary phase.

Two players who came out of last year's secondary phase are pitchers Pete Broberg of Texas and Burt Hooton of the Chicago Cubs, who earlier this season pitched a no-hitter.

The order of draft following Los Angeles was: Cleveland, New York Mets, Texas, San Diego, California, Houston, Kansas City, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Atlanta, Detroit, Montreal, New York Yankees, Chicago Cubs, Chicago White Sox.

Philadelphia, Minnesota, San Francisco, Boston, St. Louis, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Oakland.

Clawson, Fiene

Shutout Whiteman

Ron Clawson and John Fiene hurled back-to-back shutouts for Mike O'Connor Motors Tuesday night in Housel Park as O'Connors notched 2-0 and 6-0 victories over Whiteman Air Force Base.

Clawson's effort was a two-hitter. O'Connors pushed across the only runs of the game in the third inning, when Les Hill drove in Ron Mooney and Clawson with a two-out single.

Tom Milligan was saddled with the loss.

Hill again starred in the second game, smacking a two-run homer in the opening inning that set the tempo for O'Connors. Sam Cramer, Bill Ray and John Higgins each had three hits in the game for O'Connors.

Bob Epple was the losing pitcher.

O'Connors will host Clarksburg in a Sunday night twinbill in Housel Park. The opening game is set for 7:30 p.m.

No Baseball This Season In Harry Truman Plant

KANSAS CITY (AP) — There will be no baseball in the Harry S. Truman sports complex this season.

The Kansas City Royals announced Tuesday they have abandoned the idea of playing in their big new stadium in 1972.

Attorney Phil Koury, a spokesman for Royals owner Ewing Kauffman, said, "Our goal was that we would accept the stadium only in the event the public would find it both beautiful and safe."

Koury admitted the stadium could be used this season but added:

"It would mean playing in a stadium lacking in certain conveniences to the public, in certain elements of safety and, above all, lacking in the beauty that will be so apparent when the stadium is completed."

The Royals will pay only $180,000 in rent this year by not using the stadium. The rent would be $400,000 if they played only one game.

The Kansas City Chiefs plan to occupy the complex's football stadium next season. They play their first exhibition game Aug. 12.

East Texas Takes Early Tennis Lead

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Play in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tennis tournament continued today with East Texas State leading in the team scoring with 23 points but Redlands University of California still favored to win its seventh straight title.

Only one of Redlands' players lost Tuesday. Bob Essinger lost to Bill Kent of Atlantic Christian 6-4, 7-5 in the second round.

Redlands' two seeded players, No. 2 John Brush and third-ranked Randy Verdieck, advanced. Brush defeated Pat Washington of Texas Southern 6-2, 6-2, and Verdieck beat Steve Edlund of Gustavus Adolphus 6-0, 6-2.

Three other players for the Californians scored victories. Mitch Finkelstein downed Wayne Muskievich of Augustana, Ill. 6-3, 6-4 and Dave Geiser of Manchester, Ind. 6-0, 6-2; Seabury Stanton trimmed Tim Mann of Taylor, Ind. 6-4, 6-3; and Rich Tripp turned back Dennis Fisher of Kearney, Neb. State 6-4, 6-0.

Other seeded players moved up as expected. Milan Kofol of Presbyterian, the No. 1 seed, eliminated Carl Maschkau of Loras, Iowa, 6-1, 6-3.

Fourth-ranked Kimm Kettelsen of Southeastern Oklahoma State knocked out Carmack Berryman of East Texas State 6-1, 6-1; No. 5 Harry Fritz of East Texas State defeated Bruce Shuman of Eastern Illinois 6-4, 6-3 and Steve Millikin of Cedarville, Ohio, 6-1, 6-2.

Dave Kubes of Gustavus Adolphus, seeded sixth, beat David Hale of Atlantic Christian 7-5, 6-1; No. 7 Mark Milligan of Southeastern Oklahoma State outlasted James Stevenson of St. Ambrose, Iowa, 13-11, and No. 8 Bob Hochstradter of East Texas State defeated Speedy Gilstrap 6-4, retired.

Presbyterian finished Tuesday's play tied with Redlands with 22 points in the team standings. Southeastern Oklahoma had 20, Atlantic Christian 16, Oregon College, Gustavus Adolphus, Carson-Newman and Columbus, Ga., 11 each, and Oshkosh, Wis. State and High Point, N.C., 9 each.

Two Sweet Springs Athletes to SFCC

Ted Moore

Jerry Reid

Ted Moore and Jerry Reid, two standout baseball players for Coach John Johnson at Sweet Springs High School, have signed baseball letters of intent to attend State Fair Community College this fall.

Moore, who sported the top pitching and hitting marks for the Greyhounds this season played football, basketball and baseball in high school.

Reid was the shortstop on Johnson's baseball squad, that finished second to Sedalia Smith-Cotton in the Missouri State High School Activities Association's sub-district playoffs recently.

He also lettered in basketball and was selected as the team's top defensive player.

"We are very happy to have student-athletes of this caliber attend our school," said Foster McGuire, head baseball coach at State Fair.

Moore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Moore, Sweet Springs; Reid is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Reid, Jr., Houstonia.

Quirk Is First Royals' Choice

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Royals said today they plucked "possibly the best infielder to come along in quite a few years" Tuesday when they grabbed Jamie Quirk of Whittier, Calif., in the first round of the free agent draft in New York.

Because they drafted 18th, the Royals hadn't expected to find Quirk available.

"We were elated to be able to have the negotiation rights for Quirk," said Lou Gorman, director of minor league operations and scouting. "There is no question in my mind that with this boy's physical skills he could develop into a good major league infielder."

Quirk bats left-handed, is 6 feet 4, weighs 185. He is 18.

The Royals picked a total of 28 players in the draft which was to end today.

The other Royals selections:

Round 2—Dennis Leonard, pitcher, 21, 6 feet 1, 190, Iona College, New Rochelle, N.Y.

3—Paul Adams, catcher, 18, 6-0, 205, Alamo, San Antonio, Tex.

Orr Resting Well Following Surgery

BOSTON (AP) — Bobby Orr of the Boston Bruins, the most valuable player in the National Hockey League the past three years, was reported resting comfortably today in Massachusetts General Hospital following surgery on his left knee.

The surgery was described as "an over-all cleanup operation" and Dr. Carter Rowe, who performed the three-hour operation, said he "foresees no problems."

Rowe said several portions of cartilage were removed and several bone spurs. He said the All Star defenseman should be back on skates in September.

Columbia BJers Begin Ban Johnson Loop Play

Columbia, the lone powerhouse left in the eastern division of the Central Missouri Ban Johnson League now that Jefferson City is out of the loop, will open their CMBJ schedule Wednesday night in Centralia.

Sedalia, who is locked in an early-season western division tie with Marshall (both at 1-0), hosts Marshall in Liberty Park Stadium in a 8 p.m. game.

The game will probably feature a pitching duel between Sedalia's Terry Hudson, who picked up the locals decision in Sunday's win over New Franklin in relief, and Marshall's Art Leimkuehler. Leimkuehler hurled a three-hit, 6-2 victory over defending western division champ Boonville, in Sunday's season opener for both clubs.

New Franklin is at Boonville in Thursday's other tilt.

Tuesday Night ... KC, Cards Ride Rallies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rallies won for both the Kansas City Royals and the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night.

The Royals came from behind on Lou Piniella's two-run single in the sixth to defeat the Milwaukee Brewers 4-2. A two-run double by Ted Simmons highlighted a three-run eighth-inning outburst by the Cardinals in their 5-3 triumph over the San Francisco Giants.

The Royals got only two hits off Ken Brett until the sixth. In that inning, Fred Patek and Amos Otis hit successive singles and Otis stole second. Then came Piniella's hit.

The Brewers had taken a 2-0 lead in the second off Tom Murphy, 2-1, on Rick Auerbach's first home run of the season, two singles and a groundout.

Simmons' game-winning double for the Cardinals came after Ted Sizemore had walked and Matty Alou singled and both runners advanced on Joe Torre's grounder. After Simmons' double, Bernie Carbo followed with a run-scoring single.

Torre got his sixth home run in the sixth. This was the first earned run off loser Steve Stone, 3-5, in 19 2-3 innings.

The Cardinals had a late afternoon game scheduled today at San Francisco and were to send Reggie Cleveland, 4-4, against the Giants' Juan Marichal, 2-8. The Royals, with Dick Drago, 3-4, facing Jim Lonborg, 3-2, meet the Brewers again in Kansas City tonight.

Stalking the Tiger

Detroit's Aurelio Rodriguez scores on Norm Cash's single in the first inning of the opening game in Tuesday's doubleheader against the California Angels in Detroit. Angels' catcher Art

Frantz didn't quite tag Rodriguez in time. The Tigers split with the Angels, winning the opener, 8-6, but losing in the nightcap, 4-0. (UPI)

Venturi To Miss Open

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One touring pro failed to qualify and another had to survive a five-way sudden death playoff to earn a berth in the U.S. Open Golf tournament in sectional qualifying at Atlanta.

Ken Venturi, 1964 U.S. Open champion and a member of the 1965 Ryder Cup team, carded a 36-hole total of 151 and failed to gain one of six U.S. Open spots following play over the Atlanta Athletic Club course Tuesday.

Tour regular Tommy Aaron, who fashioned a 145 in regular play, qualified with a par on the first hole of sudden death along with Johnny Pott and Larry Stubblefield.

Tim Collins, an unheralded player from Greenville, S.C., led qualifiers with a two-under-par 142.

Touring pros Jim Hardy and Dwight Neill each posted two-under-par scores of 140 to pace 19 Philadelphia-area qualifiers. Prominent players who failed to qualify included George Knudson, Labron Harris and Dale Douglass.

Mike Hill led three qualifiers with a 141 after competition over the Birmingham, Mich., Country Club course. Glen Johnson, an amateur from Grosse Ile, Mich., won a berth by defeating tourist Chuck Thorpe on the second hole of a sudden death playoff to join Bob Panasuk.

John Baker Jr., an assistant pro at the Butler, Pa., Country Club, fired a 141 over his home course to lead a field of 47 golf-

VFW and Optimist Post Wins in Jr. BR Action

VFW chased in five runs in the top of the first and three in the sixth to outlast Western Auto, 12-10, while Sunrise Optimist scored runs in each of the first five innings and posted an 8-4 victory over ADCO in Tuesday night's Junior Babe Ruth League action in Centennial Park.

John Drenon picked up the victory for VFW as they rallied for eight runs in the first two innings over Western Auto in the night's opener. However, Western Auto pulled to within two, 8-6, with six runs in the bottom of the third.

Western Auto took a 10-9 lead in the fifth, but VFW scored the three deciding runs in the sixth.

Home runs in the game were hit by Brian Kennon of Western

Two Free Agents Signed by Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals announced today defensive end Gary Crane and running back Silas McKinnie have signed as free agents.

Crane, 26, is a native of Dexter, Mo. He played with the Denver Broncos in 1969 and spent the next two years in the U.S. Army. Crane stands 6-4 and weighs 250 pounds.

McKinnie, also 26, played the last four years with the Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Canadian Football League. He comes from Grand Junction, Tenn., stands 6-1 and weighs 210 pounds.

Extra Innings Needed by TNB

VFW took league-leading Third National Bank into extra innings Tuesday night in Senior Babe Ruth League action in Liberty Park. But VFW, still seeking their first win of the season, had to settle for a 5-4 loss in eight innings.

S.M. Sporting Goods, who posted their first win of the season Monday night, evened their season's slate at 2-2, with a 5-3 win over Pepsi-Cola. It was Pepsi's second loss in as many

Report Harry Sinden Top Pick as Coach

MONTREAL (AP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Tuesday night that former Boston Bruins coach Harry Sinden is the No. 1 candidate for the coaching position with the Canadian team that will play the Russians in an exhibition series this fall.

"He is our prime candidate," said Campbell. "There hasn't been a single dissenting voice in hockey when the name has been brought up."

Sinden, who left the Bruins after coaching them to the Stanley Cup in 1969-70, has already expressed interest in the job.

The Canadian team is scheduled to play the Russians four times in Russia Sept. 1-8 and four times in Canada Sept. 22-27.

Patulski, Buffalo Agree To Terms

BUFFALO (AP) — Walt Patulski, the National Football League's number one draft pick, signed a multiyear contract with Buffalo Bills Tuesday for an undisclosed sum.

Now, with contract negotiations concluded, the thoughts of the star defensive end from Notre Dame can turn to marriage and politics.

The 6-foot-6, 265-pound player is getting married Saturday, honeymooning in Hawaii and going to the Democratic national convention as a delegate next month.

Forty-one teams of 205 men competed in the first ABC bowling championships in Chicago in 1901.

Police Cruisers Target of Fire

ALTON, Ill. (AP)—Three police cruisers were fired on during the night in a black neighborhood of this city. Alton police said Wednesday.

No police officers were wounded as most of the bullets hit the doors and fenders of the cars, police Lt. Walter Conrad said. Officers returned the fire with service revolvers and shotguns after the cars were hit by what appeared to be 22-caliber rifle fire, Conrad said.

Shortly after the shooting exchange, an 18-year-old youth was admitted to an Alton hospital for treatment of a pellet wound. The youth admitted being near the scene of the shooting, police said.

Two police cars had been fired on early Tuesday but no police were hurt, Conrad said.

FREE BIKE RIDES:

TORONTO (AP)—The city has provided free bicycle transportation for at least two of the two million people living in this area.

Mayor William Dennison decided that two bicycles presented to the city by a CBC television program would be left in the streets for public use.

"I've got great faith in the honesty of Toronto people," said the mayor.

LEKTROBLADE SHAVER

By REMINGTON

The first shaver designed not to get dull! Most electric shavers shave fairly close to begin with — but with time, their blades get duller and duller. And the close shave takes longer and longer to get. The new Remington with the slant head design and Hideaway trimmer is the first shaver designed not to get dull. Because it's designed around disposable blades.
